NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, Oct. 2.—Under cloudy skies and in a more or less subdued setting, sharply contrasting with the riotous finish to the last world series here, the Detroit Tigers and the Chicago Cubs renewed an old baseball argument today.

Upwards of 48,000 fans, apparently filling the American League park, turned out for the opening game of the 1935 championship series, despite cool and cheerless weather. It was a better day for topcoats, furs and football than it was for peanuts, pop and baseball.

Electors Debauched By Own Revenue In National Works Plan

REGINA, Oct. 2.—All reform measures inaugurated by the Bennett government were designed for political purposes and not to serve the people, Liberal leader Mackenzie King said here last night. Had Mr. Bennett been sincere in his reforms he would have brought them in before the last session of parliament and would have tested their legal validity.

These measures were all hastily patched up to meet the exigencies of the election campaign. Mr. Bennett did not even trouble himself to use the measures to the full after they were passed. One of them provided for a public prosecutor who had not yet been appointed. It was reported he would be appointed in a few days, only a week before the election. The public prosecutor, he remarked, "would not have time to take his coat off."

Premier Mussolini Calls Ten Million To Listen To His Paens Of Hostilities

ROME, Oct. 2.—Premier Mussolini today told his millions of fervent followers that "a solemn hour is about to break in history." He made this declaration to the multitudes of Italians assembled in all their cities and villages—rank upon rank, around loud speakers which conveyed their leader's words to the masses.

"Black Shirt men and women of Italy," said Mussolini, "I speak to 20,000,000 men and women.

"Not only our army marches toward its goal, but 44,000,000 Italians are marching with the army."

Unofficial observers present predicted that an Italian offensive in Ethiopia would begin anywhere between Oct. 5 and 10, provided the present rains cease.

He said Italy would respond to "war with war."

He declared he did not believe that "the real French associate themselves with sanctions against Italy."

Mussolini said that the League "instead of recognizing

ROME, Oct. 2.—Benito Mussolini, premier of Italy and Fascist leader, today pledged his nation to meet force with force and to bear economic sanctions "with discipline."

"War," he said, "would be met with war." He said he did not believe "real French" or "genuine British" would execute sanctions against Italy.

"We will not pretend. To economic sanctions, we will reply with the discipline of our people. To military ones, we will reply with military action."

Dramatically Mussolini pointed from his balcony to the monument of the Unknown Soldier. He recalled "Italy's 600,000 war deaths" but told them that after war "only disillusion came."

The great assemblage—the "Adunata"—lasted three and three quarter hours. It ended at 7:15 p.m., soon after Il Duce had ceased speaking.

DIRECT RELIEF CASES GROWING

By THOS. WAYLING
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, Oct. 2.—The number of persons in Canada on direct relief has steadily increased during the Bennett regime, department of labor figures showed today. In August, 1935, there were 1,154,693 people on direct relief, as compared with 1,004,107, 1933, 972,108 and 1932, 732,300. This increase has taken place despite the fact that this year thousands of unbanites have gone to work on the government's construction projects.

Seeks Judgment Against Toronto Brokers in Stock Transaction

TORONTO, Oct. 2.—Plaintiff in an action against a firm of Toronto brokers over a $10,000 stock transaction, Hon. William Leigh Walsh, lieutenant-governor of Alberta, appeared before Mr. Justice McFarland at Osgoode hall here today.

The present lieutenant-governor of Alberta in his statement of claim says the stock transaction goes back to 1928, and that the defendants withheld information respecting the stock.

He asks the transaction be rescinded. Plaintiff also asks judgment for $9,170.24 with interest at five per cent until payment of judgment, or in alternative costs and $7,000 for breach of duty.

Hearing of the case is proceeding.

WHEAT PRICES SOARING WHEN WAR IS SURE

Trading Hits High Spots At Winnipeg and Chicago

WINNIPEG, Oct. 2. — The tramp of marching feet in far-off Ethiopia brought about higher prices for Canada's wheat today.

Futures prices advanced three cents a bushel—the May option to $1.00—coincident with a reported advance of Italian troops into Haile Selassie's empire. Export sale of 2,000,000 bushels of wheat further whetted bullish fervor.

Net gains of three to 2¼ cents were marked up as the market closed amid a wild burst of buying. October ended at 95½, November 96⅞, and December at 96⅞. The May option closed at $1.00, its best price in more than two weeks.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2. — Wheat prices shot up the five-cent limit in Chicago and Minneapolis today, as all world grain prices soared with reports of hostilities in Ethiopia. December sold at $1.07⅞, May $1.06⅞, and July 97½.

TOWN OFFICER KILLS HIMSELF

LLOYDMINSTER, Oct. 2.—Believed to have been killed by his own hand, Constable Fred Lomas, town policeman of Lloydminster, was found dead in the town fire hall about 4:30 Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Lomas, who was at the time on the street near the hall, heard the shot and went running into the hall to find her husband lying dead in a pool of blood, it is reported.

Councillor W. U. Miner, K.C., who has charge of the police department of the administration, was notified, also Dr. G. L. Cooke.

No announcement has yet been made in regard to an inquest, and the body has been removed to Moore's funeral home.

Secret Of Advance Is Not Denied

ROME, Oct. 2.—The Italian government late this afternoon no longer denied that Italian troops had begun their advance into Ethiopia, despite earlier official denials. Unconfirmed reports were heard here this evening that the Italian forces had occupied Adwa.

Official circles said the reports should be regarded with "utmost reserve." As soon as the action-wide mobilization was called today, a special guard of 300 police and infantrymen was thrown around the British embassy.

CAIRO, Oct. 2.—The Egyptian cabinet was convened in a sudden special session today after Sir Miles Lampson, British high commissioner, had flown to Alexandria for an interview with King Fuad.

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 2.—The government was informed that the French have erected barriers, visible from the air along the Italo-France border (the dividing line between French Somaliland and the Italian colony of Eritrea) warning the Italians not to invade French territory.

GENEVA, Oct. 2.—Reports from Addis Ababa that Emperor Haile Selassie was protesting against an alleged Italian invasion of Ethiopia excited officials of the League of Nations today. Officials said they expected to publish the text of the Emperor's cablegram before the end of the day but that details regarding the protest were not immediately available.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The gravity of the Italo-Ethiopian crisis for Europe, from the French viewpoint, was not hidden by officials. Pro-English ministers, including Former Premier Edouard Herriot, were reported insisting Laval take a strong stand against Italy, alongside Britain. If Laval refused to take such a stand, informed sources said, other ministers might resign, precipitating a cabinet crisis. Their attitude was represented as being that the premier was no longer able to "ride both Italian and British horses."

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 2. — The Italian legation was vacated here today. The archives of the legation were delivered to the railway station. A huge bonfire blazed in the garden behind the legation building, where the Italian officials burned papers and documents.

Finally when police did see Serelo his lower lip appeared to have been bitten off. He refused to say anything to police at the time.

King Salassie Now Expected To Mobilize

Mussolini Enters At Point Not Defined

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 2.—High authorities said tonight that Emperor Haile Selassie will proclaim his general mobilization of Ethiopian forces at 9 a.m. (3 a.m., E.S.T.) tomorrow.

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 2.—Italian troops were today advancing into Ethiopian territory near the corner of Eritrea and French Somaliland. The border was crossed just west of Mount Mussali, according to reports confirmed by Ethiopian authorities. The mountain is only a few miles from the junction of the three borders.

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GENEVA, Oct. 2.—Italy has struck in East Africa. All members of the League of Nations this afternoon were officially notified of the receipt of a telegram from the Emperor of Ethiopia that "Italian troops violated the Ethiopian frontier region south of Mount Mussa Ali in the province of Auasa, between that mountain and the frontier of Ethiopia and French Somaliland, established themselves on Ethiopian territory, preparing a base for an extensive attack."

The word of the Italian advance struck Geneva with all the principals of the league away. Anthony Eden was attending a cabinet meeting in London, Premier Laval was in Paris.

The League's secretariat was still working on the historical section of the League council's report. Experts were mulling over whether it would still be possible to send observers to the border.

Tomorrow afternoon the committee of 18—virtually the whole council minus Italy—meets to prepare its recommendations. It is proposed immediately to have the council view the situation. Delegates to the assembly who dispersed Saturday are expected to be summoned back.

King Salassie Prepares For War

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 2.—Emperor Haile Selassie tonight ordered Prince Asfaua-Wossan Tafari, Crown Prince of Ethiopia and commander of the eastern army, to place his men in readiness to repel the Italian troops who today invaded Ethiopian territory.

The emperor still hesitated to put into force his general mobilization decree.

Dessie, where the crown prince's troops are camped, is situated near the foot of Mount Mussa Ali. There Benito Mussolini is reported to have concentrated 30,000 Italian troops, 70 tanks and many bombing planes.

Italy Places Its Airman On High Elevation

JURORS FREE GIRL STABBER OF FARM BOY

Honor-Killing Verdict Closes Noted Red Deer Case

RED DEER, Alta., Oct. 2.—Annie Kirton, 18-year-old girl of the Willowdale district, south of Red Deer, killed Lenard Wickwire, 17, "in self defence of life and honor," a coroner's jury inquiring into the youth's death last Friday decided here Tuesday.

Wickwire, whom witnesses said was mentally sub-normal and had attacked the girl two years ago, was stabbed in the chest with a knife wielded by Miss Kirton as Wickwire attempted to attack her and a companion, Margaret Kendrew, 17, at the Kendrew farm.

20 MINUTE VERDICT

The jury after 20 minutes deliberation returned a verdict stating Miss Kirton acted in self defence "being terrified through previous assaults at the hands of Wickwire and by his actions immediately preceding the fatal accident."

There were sixteen witnesses, and the inquest occupied the whole of Tuesday afternoon. W. B. Payne, KC., who found the body in the road, was the first witness. Dr. C. R. Dunn, coroner, Dr. Nix who conducted the post mortem, Sgt. Tomlinson and Corp. Yuill of the RC M.P. detective, S. C. Coggles, who represented the attorney-general's department were the legal official witnesses. All the others were the principals and their relatives and neighbors.

FULL FACTS ADDUCED

The story brought out in evidence was as follows:

In October, 1932, Annie Ellen Kirton, a bright, well-behaved and rather reserved girl, complained to her parents that she had been molested by a boy a year older than herself. Riding a horse he had met her in the road and lashed out at her with a long stick, dismounted, chased her through the fence back to the road, wrestled with her in an attempt at assault. He had taken her sweater from her and carried away with him.

As a result her father said an interview for common assault, was fixed for the following day. The boy's actions were queer; he was backward, unsocial and apparently subnormal.

ROBBED MAILBOX

Again, about a month ago, he had robbed the mail box of the Kirton's, breaking a parcel open and stealing articles of female apparel which he hid. From time to time he had chased the girl, who it seemed to be in terror of him.

Last Friday, Annie was with her friend Margaret Kendrew, at whose home she was helping during the threshing. The two girls alone in the house at 2:30 or 3 o'clock to go a mile for the mail. On their return when a few hundred yards from the house, they had been chased by this youth, and fled to the house, where they locked the back door, but either forgot or had not time to lock the front door.

The boy hammered at the back door and demanded admittance and Annie armed herself with two butcher knives while Margaret called to the dog, which the boy fought off. Going around to the front door, he broke the screen door and burst in, charging at the Kirton girl.

She stabbed him in the chest and rushed past him through the door. Margaret following.

DIED UPON ROAD

Leonard staggered with blood gushing from his chest and reeled down the road, three hundred and sixty feet. It was afterwards ascertained where he fell and died. Meanwhile, the two girls had run towards where their father and his gang were threshing, stopping on the way to break the news to another threshing gang. Albert Smith's.

Mrs. Steele and her eleven-year-old daughter, Heather, and their little girl having been chased and frightened; Mrs. Ruth Underwood, a former Willowdale teacher, gave evidence of the subnormal mentality of the youth, and of the good manners and behavior of the Kirton girl, in contradiction of the story told by Mrs. Wickshire as to her son having been "teased." Mr. and Mrs. Kirton and the two girls were the remaining witnesses.

Woman Crushed Against Wall By Truck Tuesday

Mrs. May Gaetz, 11131 93 street, was taken to the Royal Alexandra hospital Tuesday afternoon when she was crushed against the south lane wall of the Canada Permanent building, 100 street, at 4 p.m. Her injuries are not believed serious.

Mrs. H. N. Bissett, 9681 87 avenue, reported to police that she saw Mrs. Gaetz crushed by the truck, which did not stop. She fainted shortly after in a nearby store. Mrs. Bissett called a Jack Hays' taxi and took the woman to the hospital.

John Bassett, 10634 122 street, reported to police that he saw a truck run over and kill a small dog on Jasper at 115 street. On a bicycle, Mr. Bassett went after the truck but could not see its license number although he gave some description.

That her coat was torn by a car driven by E. Bolton, 10333 99 street, when she got off a street car on Jasper at 96 street, Monday morning, Mrs. Kathleen Pinsky, 11495 94 street, told police. Shaw reported that the street car stopped beyond the regular place and had swerved toward the curb to avoid Mrs. Shashky.

TAX TOTAL UP HALF MILLION, REPORT STATES

Over a half-million dollars increase in tax collections for the first nine months of this year as compared to the corresponding period in 1932 was disclosed Wednesday with the release by Thomas Walker, city tax collector, of the collections report showing a total of $3,070,585.25 as compared to $2,-570,079.85 last year.

Classification of collections follows, figures for 1933 and 1934 being given in that order: land taxes—current, $2,092,742.19, $1,753,876.56; arrears, $712,903.79, $509,574.39; business tax—current, $290,732.71, $185,-045.47; arrears, $27,408.74, $28,805.83; service tax—current, nil, $22,500; arrears, nil, $19; land sales—$56,-778.82, $28,358.70.

List Of Electors Shows 2,339 More Voters This Year

This year there are 47,528 electors on the voters' lists as an increase of 2,339 as compared to the 1934 total of 45,589, Thomas Walker, city assessor, announced Wednesday. Of this number, 10,743 reside on the South Side, the remainder being North Side residents. The 1934 figure for the South Side was 10,390.

Burgesses show a decrease, the total for this year being 11,596 against 11,598 for last year. Reason given for the drop in property-holders was the fact that a number of citizens were forfeiting property to the city.

Roper Addresses K.E.P. Meeting

Control of production and distribution of Canadian manufactures and nationalization of credit and finance were objectives of the old C.C.F. if elected said Elmer E. Roper, C.C.F. candidate in East Edmonton speaking at King Edward park on Tuesday night.

Mr. Roper did not anticipate a C.C.F. government in power, but said their minority group, if elected, would "keep hammering away" for needed economic changes.

Alberta Jobless Totals Unchanged

Unemployment figures for the week ending on Saturday last remained practically the same as the previous week, according to a report released on Wednesday.

On Saturday last there were 6,611 registered unemployed in the province, practically the same number as the week before.

Of these 3,929 were men and 682 were women.

This city had the largest number of unemployed, with 2,957 men and 596 women while Calgary was second with 2,201 men and 236 women. Lethbridge registered 406 men and 34 women; Medicine Hat 79 men and eight women; Red Deer 193 men and eight women.

Officials report that there is no shortage of harvest help and that all demands are being taken care of.

Robinson Given Six-Month Term

Harold McMaster turned out to be anything but a star witness for the defence in a case before Mr. Justice Tweedie in criminal court Tuesday.

McMaster appeared as a witness for Neil Robinson, charged with stealing three sets of driving lines from a down-town departmental store. The judge convicted Robinson, sentencing him to six months in jail, stating he did not believe McMaster or his girl friend, insomuch as they said they cooked the accused meals at the time he was supposed to have committed the alleged robbery.

"What kind of con" Crown Prosecutor E. B. Cogswell, K.C., asked McMaster.

By profession I'm a wrestler or boxer, McMaster answered.

The court elected not to believe the evidence of McMaster insofar as that of William Massie, an employe of the store who positively identified accused as the lad he had seen pick up the stolen goods.

W. G. K. Bloor appeared for the defence.

FIRST INNING

CUBS—Umpire Moriarty suddenly called a ball to order the removal of sound camera apparatus from behind the plate. Galan hit sharply over second base and raced to second as Rogell deflected the ball to short centre. It was scored as a two base hit. Herman dragged a roller along the third baseline and bunted sharply to Owen, who threw wildly. Galan scored as the ball rolled past the first baseman. Rowe was charged with an error and Greenberg, who made a desperate stab but missed the ball, damaged a finger on his right hand. Herman stopped at first base. Lindstrom sacrificed, Rowe to Greenberg as Herman advanced to second. Hartnett singled to right scoring Herman. Demaree popped to Rogell behind the pitcher's box. Cavarretta grounded to Gehringer and Hartnett was put out at second. Gehringer to Rogell.

Two runs, two hits, one error, no left.

TIGERS—White fanned on a third called strike. Cochrane hoisted a short fly to Galan. Gehringer lofted a high one to Jurges who backed up on the grass for the catch.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

SECOND INNING

CUBS—Hack looped a short fly that Gehringer caught in short centre. Jurges lined a hit into Rogell. Goslin juggled the ball and was charged with an error as Jurges gained an extra base and reached second. Warneke flied to Fox in short right field as the second Galan struck out swinging at a change of pace. It was a nice piece of work by Fox as the Tiger fielders let loose their first roar.

TIGERS—Greenberg bounced to Hack and was thrown out at first with a clean play. Umpire Moriarty went over to the Chicago dugout to warn the Cubs against making too much comment on the close decisions along the first base line and was followed by Manager Charley Grimm. Fox doubled against the left field screen. The ball missed clearing the barrier by inches. Rogell flied to Galan who misjudged the ball but backed into just in time to get his outstretched hands on it.

No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

THIRD RUNNING

CUBS—Herman lined to Greenberg who made a sensational leaping catch as Gehringer came over to rob the Cub second sacker of a base hit. Lindstrom smacked the first pitch to left for a single. Hartnett struck out and Lindstrom was doubled trying to steal. Cochrane to Gehringer.

No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

TIGERS—Owen hit sharply to the box and Warneke made a quick recovery, after deflecting the ball, to catch the Tiger third baseman on a close play as Demaree reached over into the outfield. Jurges fanned swinging at a high hard one and the crowd let loose a yell.

TIGERS—Gehringer rolled to the box and was thrown out at first. Warneke to Cavarretta. It was the fourth successive assist for the Cub pitcher as Greenberg fouled to the third baseline and Rogell collided with Hartnett walked out to the box and the crowd was in another uproar. Goslin walked to the first base line on a close play as Demaree reached over into the outfield. Hack circled out. Gehringer to Greenberg. Demaree had reached third on the previous putout. Jurges fanned swinging at a high hard one and the crowd let loose a yell.

Civil War Standing At His Deathbed

GENERAL JUAN GOMEZ

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Oct. 2—Persistent rumors that General Juan Vincent Gomez, strong-armed dictator of Venezuela for more than 26 years, lay on his death-bed at Caracas were strengthened Tuesday by word reaching here that the Venezuelan frontier force at the Moroua river had been doubled. Even while pious peasants prayed in the adjacent Bolivar state for Gomez and dois guarde—God guard Gomez," arms were being smuggled into the country from the border-town Morawhanna, British Guiana, by belligerent lieutenants of the 76-year-old president who were said to be awaiting only his death to plunge the South American republic into multi-sided civil war.

flying stab for the ball, deflected it to right field. White grounded out, Herman to Cavarretta. Rowe went to third. Cochrane dribbled to Demaree who threw the putout at first unassisted after taking the ball on the run.

SIXTH INNING

CUBS—Lindstrom lifted the first pitch to Gehringer who made the catch a few steps back of second base. Hartnett smashed a single between Owen and Rogell. Demaree fanned swinging at a fast ball. Cavarretta fanned on swinging at a curve.

It was Rowe's best inning thus far. The schoolboy had the Cub batters thoroughly baffled by his speed and sharp breaking curve.

TIGERS—Gehringer rolled out, Herman to Cavarretta. Greenberg popped to Hack, who made the catch near the baseline back of third. Goslin lofted sharply toward the box, Warneke deflecting the ball to Herman, who threw out the runner at first.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

SEVENTH INNING

CUBS—Hack fanned on a called third strike. Jurges popped to Rogell who made a nice catch on the grass behind third base. The bat flew from Jurges' hands as he swung at a curve. Warneke grounded out on the first pitch, Gehringer to Greenberg.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

TIGERS—Fox rolled out, Warneke to Cavarretta. The Cub pitcher was using a screw ball effectively and had the Tiger batting many of their balls. Rogell lifted a short fly that Jurges caught in foul territory after a hard run. Owen walked on the fourth ball being inside. Rowe hit a towering fly that Lindstrom caught by standing a few feet in front of the screen in left centre.

Warneke, with seven assists so far, was within one of the world series record of eight set in 1929 by Nick Altrock of the Chicago White Sox.

EIGHTH INNING

CUBS—Galan bounded to Greenberg and reached first safely with a slide as Greenberg fumbled the ball. The Tiger first baseman was charged with an error. Herman sacrificed on a nice bunt down the first base line, Rowe tossing to Greenberg for the putout as Galan raced to second. Galan raced to third as the ball caromed away from Cochrane. It was a passed ball Lindstrom rolled to Rowe who whirled, after faking a throw to third, and barely caught the hitter with a fast ball. Greenberg Hartnett rolled to the box and the crowd was in another uproar. Goslin walked to the fourth straight ball, moving Greenberg to second. Fox grounded to Jurges. Fox came in fast and nipped the batter with a quick toss to Cavarretta. Greenberg went to third and Goslin to second. Rogell rolled out to Cavarretta unassisted. The Cubs first baseman grabbed the ball a few feet from the bag and beat Rogell by a step as both dove for the base.

No runs, no hits, no errors, two left.

FIFTH INNING

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

TIGERS—Owen lined to Demaree in deep right. Rowe caromed a hit through the box and it went for a double as Jurges, in making a

NINTH INNING

CUBS—Demaree cracked a home run ball way up into the open stands in left field. Cavarretta fanned swinging. Hack lined to White in short centre. Jurges fanned swinging.

GRIZZLY BEAR KILLED AS HE MAKES ATTACK

Big Game Hunters Near-Victims of Bruin Surprise Attack

DAWSON CREEK, B.C., Oct. 1.—Phil Eastwin, guide and outfitter, arrived in Dawson Creek today heading his hunting party, Dr. B. J. Ochner, of Muenster, Sask., and his brother, Ed. D. Ochner, taxidermist from Prairie du Sac, Wisconsin, after a successful hunt of thirty days.

Despite bad weather and snowstorms encountered in the mountains the hunters succeeded in getting nine big caribou, moose and goat heads and one enormous grizzly, which was killed at a range of 57 feet as he charged at the party, who were skinning two caribou at the time.

The grizzly, which measured eight feet and weighed about seven hundred and fifty pounds, took the party completely by surprise, but quick action soon ended the encounter.

The party estimated they saw 275 caribou, 75 goats, nine grizzlies and other game on the trip.

Dr. Ochner is an expert photographer and has taken many pictures of the game, and claims that he has the best game pictures that anyone can show up to date.

DUCE ORDERS MOBILIZATION OF 10,000,000

Italy's rights, talks sanctions.

As he spoke of the "real French," he said:

"I refuse to believe that the genuine Britons will associate themselves with sanctions to protect a barbarous people."

Red white and black posters bearing Mussolini's profile were displayed on buildings proclaiming Italy's preference for peace but her readiness for war with some blunt language directed at Great Britain.

"Italy does not want," said these posters, "but not unless it is founded on justice.

"We have had friendship for the English people—sincere friendship, a friendship through a course of years. But today we find it simply monstrous that this nation which dominates the world refuses us a right in the poor land of Africa."

At the signal for the test of mobilization strength, the Fascists were required to leave their work, return to their homes, don the Blackshirt uniforms, and fall in at prearranged points.

Each of the 10,000,000 was informed in advance as to what square he should go.

QUICK ACTION SEEN

The announcement by Starace was made over the radio at 3:20 p.m., just 10 minutes before the signal for general mobilization was to be given.

He gave the population two hours to reach their places where they were to hear Il Duce speak to them.

Words suddenly appeared in the streets playing "Giovinezza," the Fascist national anthem and crowds rushed to their places of assembly took up the tune.

Flags were unfurled from buildings throughout Italy and Other banners appeared in the street waved by women at their departing friends.

During a two-hour interval the Fascist party arranged for a national service man will be held in the Liberal club rooms, basement of the McLeod block on Thursday night at eight o'clock. All ex-servicemen and their friends are invited to attend.

HOT CONTROVERSY LEADS LANSBURY TO DISAGREEMENT

BRIGHTON, Eng., Oct. 2—The question of sanctions against Premier Mussolini in the event of an Italo-Ethiopian war Tuesday led to violent controversy between national leaders in the first session of the labor party convention.

A bitter debate was climaxed by George Lansbury's reaffirmation of his effort to quit as the party leader in the house of commons. He called his position "intolerable."

Although the vote to be taken today is expected to show the party overwhelmingly in favor of using sanctions against Italy, if necessary, Lansbury may not be required to quit, despite his expressed pacifist convictions.

That was indicated by the manner in which the convention suddenly united in a spectacular personal tribute to the party leader.

Lansbury himself hinted he might continue as leader, declaring the subject of the sanctions debate "is not the overwhelming, fundamental question that brings us together."

"I want every one to understand," said Lansbury, "that it is going to be difficult for me to stand here and publicly repudiate this big fundamental policy (for sanctions) and agree it is quite intolerable that you should have a man speaking as a leader who disagrees fundamentally with issues of this kind.",

SOCIAL CREDIT SPLIT SHOWING IN CITY SEAT

David Horwood, candidate of the Social Credit group, as well as a much larger number of Social Credit supporters outside of groups are dissatisfied with the present candidate, and that the possibility of his election, due to his defeat and the very poor showing he made in the provincial election, I take this opportunity to present myself as a candidate to adequately represent the 100 per cent Social Credit principles and policies.

HORWOOD ALSO SUPPORTING

"In coming to this decision, I not only have the assurance of the support of many in and out of groups, but wish to express my gratitude and appreciation in particular, for the assurance of support from Mr. David Horwood, the candidate of the East Edmonton Social Credit convention of September 11, who joins with me and the many others supporting me, in a complete lack of confidence in the present candidate, Dr. W. S. Hall, and his ability to carry the East Edmonton federal seat for the Social Credit League of Alberta.

"Mr. Horwood and myself led the candidate Dr. Hall in the vote of delegates we received in both conventions, and had the vote gone through to a final one candidate elimination, Dr. Hall would not have been the nominee at the convention.

"My campaign will be vigorous, straight from the shoulder, with a battery of trained speakers and radio broadcasts.

"I make this appeal to all fair-minded Social Credit supporters, in and out of groups, to close ranks, and all others, friends of fees strike, out for a fight or a finish, for your support, in and out of groups, who can give me their conscientious assistance in this fight for the high principles of a great cause for the salvation of the economic disease, and distress of humanity."

Both Dr. Ghostley and Mr. Horwood charge unfair and biased treatment by the executive of the East Edmonton Social Credit Federal constituency in that this body directed and influenced by the advisory board to favor Dr. Hall as a matter of personal preferment and patronage, and directed the advisory board not to hear a committee of Social Credit groups who were favoring the candidature of Dr. Ghostley and Mr. Horwood.

The announcement of Dr. Ghostley comes as the aftermath of dissatisfaction with the first convention at which Mr. Horwood was defeated in the nomination which was reconvened after protests had been made over the manner in which it had been conducted. Dr. Hall received the official nomination at the reconvened convention, but it is charged by both Dr. Ghostley and Mr. Horwood that the advisory committee was approached and influenced in the decision which put them out of court as possible candidates.

Premier William Aberhart had no comment to make on Wednesday on the split in East Edmonton dominion constituency Social Credit ranks.

"I am tied up with the provincial field and could not find time for any dominion participation even if I wanted to," he said.

Drive For Funds For Blind Meets With Big Response

Drive for funds for the blind is meeting with a good response, according to word given out at campaign headquarters Wednesday.

Church organizations have thrown their all into the campaign and as a result the fund has been climbing in the first two days of the drive.

Teas by church workers brought the fund well up and on Wednesday the Jewish Womens' Council will hold a tea, all the funds to be devoted to the blind.

Letters are being received every day from persons who have benefited by the educational campaign, where children have been saved from premature blindness as a result of league activities.

TURKEY MAY OFFER AID TO EMPEROR SELASSIE

AFRAID MUSSOLINI HAS DESIGNS UPON ANATOLIA COLONY

Turk Officer in Ethiopia Sees Certain Defeat for Italy—Exile Reconciled With Turkish President.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Bulletin's Foreign Correspondent

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 2—Apart from Great Britain and France, who are deeply interested in anything that may happen in Ethiopia, two nations are watching Mussolini like hawks. They are Japan and Turkey.

Tokio has "vital interests" at stake in Ethiopia, but Mustapha Kemal Pasha is frankly distrustful of the Duce. The Turkish president suspects Mussolini of designs on Ottoman territory. If Italy should be victorious in Abyssinia, Kemal Pasha and his advisers figure on an Italian attack against the coasts of Anatolia with Smyrna and the region round and about that city and the immediate objective.

Pierre Van Paassen

"What the world does not take into account is this: a victorious Italy will be an entirely different Italy. It will be cocky, ultra-militaristic and unscrupulously imperialistic," said Welhib Pasha to me when I came to the war-office to discuss the situation with that distinguished Turkish general who held the Australians at bay in Gallipoli.

LIVED IN EXILE

Welhib Pasha arrived two months ago to offer his services to the negus. He was accepted immediately. He came from Cairo where he had been living in exile. Welhib Pasha and Kemal Pasha have been enemies ever since the establishment of the republic in Angora. But when Welhib Pasha arrived in Addis Ababa, Kemal telegraphed him his admiration, saying: "Your excellency has performed a noble and patriotic act as a Turk in offering your sword and your vast military science to his majesty the emperor of Ethiopia. As chief of the Turkish state, I join with all my heart in your fine gesture. I would be pleased if your excellency would consider your mission in Ethiopia an official one and I beg your excellency to convey my best wishes for a speedy and victorious issue of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict to his majesty."

TURKEY MAY FIGHT

I saw that telegram. It is one of the most important official documents hitherto exchanged in the Italo-Ethiopian muddle. Kemal could not express his animosity against Mussolini in plainer language. It is certainly not doubtful on whose side Turkey stands. Given the strong anti-Italian mood of the Turkish dictator, nobody ought to be surprised if he should throw his hat in the ring once the battle is on.

Kemal's suspicions of Italy do not rest upon any personal grief. They are well-founded. In 1916 the allies promised Italy a free hand in Asia Minor, that is territorial compensation in return for her entry into the war on the side of Britain, France and Russia. This promise to Italy was forgotten at the peace conference by the allied statesmen, but not by Mussolini. The Duce has made several veiled references to it in the course of years.

SEES ITALIAN DEFEAT

The last time, six months ago, Mussolini went so far as to hint that Italy had certain just claims in Asia Minor, upon which Kemal Pasha growled back: "I will scratch out the eyes of anyone who dares to look at Anatolia and I will chop off the claw of any robber who dares to stretch out a hand in the direction of Turkish territory."

That is why Kemal watches developments in Ethiopia with eagle eyes. It is to the interests of Turkey that Mussolini is defeated in Africa, or at least is prevented from getting control of the resources of the Abyssinian empire. Kemal knows the Mussolinian temper and also that appetite comes while eating. There is no question that Ethiopia is but a first item on the program of Italian imperialist expansion. Once having tasted victory, Mussolini will never stop.

"But is there any chance at all of the Duce being licked in Ethiopia?" I asked General Welhib Mohammed Pasha.

"A very good chance, an excellent chance," came back the Turk commander. "The Italian army is going to have a hell of a time penetrating into Ethiopia. The Italian soldiers are not of the mettle and stamina to engage in such a campaign. The heat will blast their discipline to smithereens. They're in a bad shape even now. The world will be surprised about Ethiopia's force.

NO QUARTER ON SECTION 98 SAYS R.B.

Entire Forces to Maintain Law, Order, Warning Of Premier

MONTREAL, Oct. 2.—Surprise was expressed by Prime Minister Bennett here last night, that Liberal leader Mackenzie King had stated that if elected he would repeal Section 98 of the Criminal Code, if say now what I have told questioners elsewhere, we will not repeal Section 98, but will put the entire forces of the government and state behind the maintenance of law and order.

"Torn by distrust, unrest, suspicion and doubt, the Canadian people have maintained law and order in the face of the greatest provocation offered by men who go about preaching Communism.

RUIN'S HIGHWAY

"When I hear appeals to passion and prejudice to belittle the institutions of your country, I know we are on the highway to ruin. We must get beyond that. It sounds good but it leads to disaster."

Mr. Bennett expressed satisfaction that when existing Canadian bonds matured or become callable the people would be glad to refund them at lower interest rates. In any event there had never been and never would be any hint of repudiation.

MINING AID

Liberal Leader Mackenzie King's references in Vancouver to his party's plan for mining development, Mr. Bennett said, indicated Mr. King's lack of knowledge of what had transpired in recent months. The government had appropriated $1,000,000 and sent out an army of young men throughout Canada prospecting Canadian mineral resources and mapping out possibilities for development.

TRADE PACTS

Empire trade agreements negotiated in 1932 had brought increased prosperity and assured markets in the greatest consuming country in the world. "The world should consider us loving markets." From Montreal domestic exports had increased from $115,500,000 in 1932 to $134,300,000 in 1935, and in the same period exports to empire countries increased 50 per cent, Mr. Bennett said, as a result of the Ottawa agreements.

CANADA FIRST

His government wou'd go on negotiating trade agreements and broadening trade wherever possible, Mr. Bennett said. "But I will prefer no country over Canada, nor give any country an advantage over the workers of our own. We are endeavoring to make an agreement with United States, but any bargain reached will not be at the expense of any Canadian. Nor is there any need. There are many commodities we can exchange to mutual advantage."

BRITISH SHIPS OF WAR MOVE

LONDON, Oct. 2 — News of movements of British ships at the mouth of the Suez canal, gateway to East Africa, was heard in London as the cabinet met to discuss the Italo-Ethiopian situation.

The admiralty announced the mine sweepers Dundon and Mediusa, the trawlers Moy, Liffey, Garry and Dee and the destroyer Dexter of the West Indies fleet had arrived at Alexandria, Egypt.

The battleship Queen Elizabeth, oldest of the fleet, bearing the flag of Admiral Sir William Fisher, commander of the Mediterranean fleet, the admiralty also announced, proceeded down the Mediterranean from Gibraltar.

Beacon Lights To Give Signal Mobilization

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 2.—An unconfirmed report that the general mobilization decree signed yesterday by Emperor Haile Selassie will be promulgated throughout the kingdom tonight was circulated in the capital today.

The report said the mobilization order would be made known by the lighting of beacons throughout the land.

From a reliable source it was learned the Emperor has made elaborate preparations for the promulgation of his decree.

It will take the form of a solemn proclamation and will be accompanied by a religious service.

Formal Night Attire Begs At Relief Depot

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 2.—One instance of supply exceeding demand is in evidence at the clothing department of welfare office here where there are several full dress suits, one frock coat and several dark blue coats with plenty of braid, going begging. To date, relief recipients do not seem to take to full dress suits for daily wearing apparel.

Names Jazz Leader As Love Thief

BRIG.-GEN. A. C. CRITCHLEY

LONDON, Oct. 2—The London Evening Standard said Tuesday that Brigadier-General A. C. Critchley, born in Calgary in 1890, is seeking a divorce from his wife, the former Miss Joan Foster. They were married in Dec. 1927. The paper said Carroll Gibbons, leader of the Savoy Orpheus Dance Band, was cited as co-respondent. The action is down for hearing in the l'-'- term starting Oct. 7.

Daily Nip Is Officially Okayed

MONTREAL, Oct. 2.—Here is medical endorsation of the boast of "oldest inhabitants" who claim to have got that way by taking a wee nip of something daily.

Dr. Edward H. Mason of McGill University, told a service club that alcohol in moderation "certainly is all right." Beer, wine and whisky were the best alcoholic beverages, he said.

Privately Owned Central Bank Is Boon Says Manion

Sparse Crowd Hears Railways Minister Blast All Phases of Liberal Party

Hon. A. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals at a half-filled meeting in the Empire theatre last night, opposed all of the platform advanced by Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King from the Central Bank organization to the railway policy but failed to make an impression on his audience, despite the fact he rated with reporters as the fastest speaker ever to set foot in this or any man's town.

Mr. Manion was most vigorous in reviewing all the policies advanced by the Liberal leader of Canada.

Mr. Manion blasted with an oratory that was fast and furious everything that has been said by the Liberal party leader of Canada, claiming that unemployment has been reduced from a problem of 1,000,000 to something like 300,000 in the last five years, a better record, he said than any other nation in the world. He also claimed that the Conservative party had opposed tooth and nail the proposed amalgamation of the Canadian National railways with the Canadian Pacific.

CENTRAL BANK ANGLE

Making a vigorous defence of the present set-up of the Bank of Canada Hon. Mr. Manion said that the Bank of Canada was owned by shareholders clear across Canada with a maximum holding of $2,500. No shareholder could represent any of the chartered banks. Under the present arrangement it was more under the control of the government of Canada than was the Bank of England under the control of the British government.

"It would be disastrous if the Bank of Canada was owned, controlled and operated by the government of Canada, because at some time a government might get in control at Ottawa which would wreck the financial structure of the country if they had control of currency and credit through the Bank of Canada," he said.

"It is far better to have the Bank of Canada privately owned so that politicians could not interfere in currency and credit matters," Dr. Manion contended.

Every Liberal member in parliament voted to have the Bank of Canada owned and controlled by the people of Canada through the government, he said, but held that such a state of affairs would be disastrous.

Launching into the trade policies of the Bennett government, Hon. Mr. Manion stated that Canada's export trade has been increased by the tariff policies of the present government.

All nations, he said, have increased their trade barriers against the Dominion and the government has done the only thing it could in raising tariff against these nations, he claimed.

The Ottawa agreements were the greatest things in a trade way ever negotiated by one nation, he contended.

LAUDS LEGISLATION

Then, turning to western affairs, Dr. Manion lauded the legislation that the present government has passed in connection with the farmer.

He contended that the Farm Loan Act has proved a great boon to western farmers. The Farmer-Creditor Debt Arrangement Act was another piece of legislation aimed at saving the home for the farmer.

The millions saved by western farmers would be reckoned in the future under this act, the speaker said.

No government had ever dared to implement such daring legislation, the speaker said.

PENSIONS ACTS

Old age pensions, as hinted at in future legislation, and the compulsory retirement age, were the next things touched upon by Dr. Manion.

He said that these were really advanced pieces of legislation that no other government would have attempted in these trying times. Canada would reap the benefit of these acts within the near future if the Bennett government is returned to office, he said.

As far as the present government was concerned, the speaker said, it had reduced unemployment more than even the government of Great Britain had, despite the fact Britain is held up as the model of the world, he claimed.

CANDIDATES HEARD

James H. Ogilvie, Conservative candidate for West Edmonton, and Col. P. E. Bowen, East Edmonton standard bearer for the Tory party, spoke briefly.

Mr. Ogilvie stressed the legislation passed by the government in respect to the farmer.

Col. Bowen mentioned the war pensions as passed by the present government. He contended that not a country in the world had such ideal pension legislation as Canada.

Both speakers were strongly endorsed by Dr. Manion, who claimed that the Bennett government will be returned by a larger majority than ever at the polls on October 14.

The hatless fad has swept through cities and towns of Spain to such an extent that 90 per cent. of the country's hatmakers are idle.

ROTTERDAM ON ROCK SPRINGS NEW LEAKS

Balance of Crew To Be Taken Off Ship Today

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Oct. 2—Battered by more than 1½ days of pounding on a coral reef, the luxury liner Rotterdam with 276 men still aboard was feared last night to be ready to fall victim to the first stiff wind that might whip up the Caribbean sea around the Merant Cays.

With only a gentle swell running, the easy lift and fall already had opened up holes in the big cruise boat's hull, and Kingston nautical men returning from her side Tuesday said she would be in "grave danger" should roughened seas slam her more heavily against the sharp coral.

The 24,149-ton craft, flagship of the Holland-American line, was leaking in four compartments, and Captain J. Van Duiken had sent ashore every one of his 450 passengers and 250 of his crew. They were landed here Tuesday, the passengers a cheerful group of holiday-makers who looked on the wreck as more a lark than anything else. The Kingston salvage ship Killerig was straining to haul her off the ledge, with no success; the freighter Midas, called 500 miles from Curacao, was expected to take off all but the Rotterdam's essential staff last night and reach here with them today.

Scallop Fishing Fleet Goes Out

DIGBY, N.S., Oct. 2.—Vanguard of the largest scallop fishing fleet on the Atlantic coast sailed out of Digby Gut into the Bay of Fundy Tuesday as the 1935 season opened. The catch last year was worth more than $18,000.

I LOVE YOU! WAIT: APPEALS WRECKED TAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. — The course of true love ran aground temporarily with the S.S. Rotterdam, it developed last night, with the announcement of Miss Marguerite Potter, concert singer, that her marriage to First Officer Cornelius H. P. Cosler would have to be postponed.

The couple were to have been married Saturday and more than 1,000 invitations were in the mail. But the prospective bridegroom is landlocked on his grounded ship.

He sent a wireless, though, saying "No danger and I love you."

Bilingual Issue Hard Upon Tots

ALBANY, N.Y., Oct. 2.—Ten-year-old Edmund Robert and his eight-year-old sister Noella are hard at work in their school room these days learning to speak English.

They lived with an aunt in Princeville, Que., for the past five years, attended a French school and spoke French with the rest of the children. This summer they returned home, could not speak English and Armand Robert, their father, had to act as interpreter for them.

HURRICANE IS WHIRLING TO GRAND BANKS

Death-Dealing Caribbean Storm Seeks Victims In North

HALIFAX, Oct. 2. — Whirling across the trans-Atlantic shipping lanes without finding any victims, the death-dealing tropical hurricane from the Caribbean last night was reported heading directly for the Grand Banks, where fishing vessels of half a dozen nations take their harvest from the sea.

Trans-Atlantic ships had been forewarned of the storm and in the absence of distress calls, marine officials here presumed all had kept well out of its path as it moved north northeastward after taking a toll of 64 lives and $5,000,000 in crops and property on southern islands.

BIRDS OF A FEATHER

Mr. Stevens has instructed his followers that they are not to run Reconstruction candidates against the late U.F.A. members of parliament.

Why should they? The U.F.A. members, with the exception of Mr. Coote, joined Mr. Stevens in supporting the establishment of a privately-owned Central Bank, and in handing over to that institution what control the Government formerly had over the issue of currency and the creation or withdrawal of credit.

And when was the interest of the western farmer at stake that the U.F.A. representatives did not give Mr. Stevens and Mr. Bennett the benefit of their active support or their passive consent while those gentlemen blocked the channels to the markets where the farmer must sell his products?

WHO APPLIED THE "GAG"?

When Judge Fullerton took on the duties of chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Canadian National Railways a couple of years ago, he made two or three speeches which seemed to herald a new day in the affairs of that railway system. He simply riddled the arguments of the amalgamationists, told the people of Canada their railway was an asset and not a liability, and asserted in proper and forceful language the right of the Canadian National to live as a separate railway enterprise and the right of the public to expect efficient and competitive railway service from it.

The stock of the National system immediately went up in the estimation of the public, particularly of people living in sections of the country served by National lines. It seemed that at last the Government-owned railway was to be given a chance to regain the traffic and the prestige that had been taken from it, that a man had been placed at the head who had the courage to make the system and the public interest in the system the matters of first and open consideration.

But the speeches stopped suddenly. Since those early months Mr. Fullerton has been as silent as the proverbial "clam," while the campaign for amalgamation continues to be waged with energy. Who told Judge Fullerton to stop talking? That is a point on which Hon. Dr. Manion might have enlightened his Edmonton hearers, but did not.

"WAR PALAVER"

Emperor Haile Selassie having threatened to order a general mobilization of his untrained and half-armed tribesmen, the Italian press protests that he is an "aggressor," planning to sweep down upon the territory of a peaceful and unsuspecting neighbor.

Pouring a quarter of a million highly trained and fully equipped Italian troops into Eritrea, it seems, was only a peaceful display of deep desire to keep the peace and respect the territorial integrity of Abyssinia. Or perhaps they were only sent over to recuperate in the fever-bearing breezes from the Abyssinian flood-lands? Anyway, they didn't signify anything in the way of aggressive intent, one gathers from this apprehensive outburst.

Premier Laval and Mr. Anthony Eden will no doubt be relieved to know Il Duce has not been doing or contemplating aggression against Ethiopia. They plainly suspected the contrary. That Haile Selassie will be comforted by the assurance is to be doubted. Being only the ruler of a backward state he may not appreciate the fine points of behaviour after the European model of civilization. Likely enough he will still imagine his country is to be invaded, and will probably go right on mobilizing his tribesmen.

In which case, of course, there will be nothing for Mussolini to do but send his army into Abyssinia to compel Haile to disband his troops, stop making warlike gestures—and incidentally hand over his country and go into exile.

STILL UNSOLVED

Everybody wants to abolish poverty. Practical unanimity on that point was reached long ago. Some of us may suspect it will not be done as easily as some others imagine, for the causes of poverty are not all of a kind that legislation or administration can remove. It is still true that "Drowsiness shall clothe a man in rags," however favorable economic conditions may be. But it is no longer worth while spending time making or listening to admonitions on the advisability or the social obligation to remedy conditions which thrust poverty upon people despite their best efforts to make a way for themselves.

The stickler is how to go about it. On that point opinions differ as widely as day and night. Alberta has declared for "direct action," through the payment of dividends to every resident of the province every month, as a function of the Provincial Government. The dividends to be sufficient to provide the actual necessities of life.

Where the money is to come from is what every one is wondering, the Government included. Naturally that is a question of very intense interest. Those who need the dividends are asking it in a quest for assurance that the thing can really be done. Those who do not need the dividends are asking it, in something akin to dread that money will have to be taken from these who have in order to give to those who have not. Evidently the Dean of Canterbury takes the same view, since he looks forward to the disappearance of the multi-millionaires—who, unfortunately for that assumption, are not very plentiful in Alberta.

But Mr. Aberhart was understood during the recent election campaign to say very definitely that he planned to take nothing from anybody. His idea and hope was to make everyone better off, none poorer. That is where the confusion comes in. Anyone can understand a proposal to take money from a rich man and give it to a poor man; Robin Hood operated on that principle centuries ago. But how both rich and poor can be made better off by the redistribution of a given quantity of wealth, ample though it is—that is the unsolved conundrum.

All the wealth in existence belongs to somebody. How those who have too little can be supplied without taking from those who have too much, is the problem. The Dean, like all the rest of us, does not seem to know.

Athens.—The chamber ratified the action of the government in ordering a general mobilization of the army.

London.—That Great Britain has become a borrower abroad and the United States a lender is a fact that is arousing wide interest among financiers. Newspapers here say the British-French loan is regarded in New York as a juicy melon, with brokers charging two per cent to float the issue.

St. Paul.—It was announced here that James J. Hill will take a large portion of the new German loan.

Poems That Live

A CONTEMPLATION UPON FLOWERS

Brave flowers—that I could gallant it like you,
And be as little vain!
You come abroad, and make a harmless show,
And to your beds of earth again.
You are not proud: you know your birth:
For your embroidered garments are from earth.

You do obey your months and times, but I
Would have it ever Spring:
My fate would know no Winter, never die,
Nor think of a world changed.
O that I could my bed of earth but view
And smile, and look as cheerfully as you!

O teach me to see Death and not to fear,
But rather to take trust!
How often have I seen you at a bier,
And there look fresh and spruce!
You fragrant flowers! then teach me, that my breath
Like yours may sweeten and perfume my death.
—Henry King.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

The past and present intertwined with my last week-end activities. Jim Gilroy, the Wildwood Tarzan, from his lair at Nudist Castle on Chip Lake wired the office, warning the newshounds to get their teeth sharpened because Santa Claus would be in on Monday with a nice bulging bag of dinners for the boys.

Tieing the restive Ford to a tree near the railroad track, I penetrated the jungle on Sunday afternoon, intending to offer to drive old Santa and his bag in to the modern Babylon, but no Jim was to be seen. No wild human cries came from the thickets. Even the monkeys perched quietly in the trees. We replaced some borrowed books on the shelves, fought off temptation at sight of three ducks left hanging in the shade of the cottage, and allayed the hunger elsewhere with salmon steaks, sweet potatoes and peaches and cream.

Before disappearing from the city on Saturday afternoon I'd placed a copy of Stefan Zweig's new book "Mary, Queen of Scotland and the Isles" into the hands of my chief, Mr. Campbell. While I was pursuing the elusive Tarzan and the ducks, he was deep in the intrigues of the Tudor court.

"Couldn't put it down till I'd finished it. I stayed up till three o'clock Monday morning," reports the chief.

He's the second person I know of who found the 318 page book so fascinating they couldn't lay it down till they'd finished the volume.

Every branch of literature has quickened its tempo, heightened its interest quality and developed its technique, but none so much as the new art of biography. We are supposed to register blank horror on being told that John Milton received only five pounds for "Paradise Lost." Were he writing it today his labor would be lost too. No publisher would give currency or credit in any amount for a similar work. Stephen Vincent Benet may not be known, three centuries from now, but his "John Brown's Body" as epic poetry has a thousand times the reader-worth of "Paradise Lost."

Emil Ludwig set the popular taste for biography. He made his subjects live by putting their words in their mouths that he imagined they must have spoken—a literary method followed by Mrs. L. Adams Beck in the "E. Barrington" aspect of her dual personality. But men like Frances Hackett and Zweig dig deeper into the records of the past. They find the very words used by their subjects, by ambassadors, by prelates, by observers of the bygone day. Research in diaries, state papers and in the Papal Library enable Hackett to place in the mouth of his characters the actual words uttered by or of them in the day in which they lived.

How many, I wonder, of the multitude that paid in the aggregate three millions of dollars to see Charles Laughton in "Henry the Eighth and his Wives" knew that they were merely seeing a pale and scant version of Hackett's fascinating biography of the dynasty-driven monarch?

Mary Stuart needed a faithful, penetrating and unbiased biographer. The rivalry between Mary and her "sweet cousin Elizabeth" was the rivalry for the throne of England, but they typified to their followers the struggle between the old Catholicism and the Reformation. According to the personal attitude of the biographer to this aspect of their conflict, Mary Stuart has been depicted either as a martyred saint or a harlot.

Zweig sees her as a woman, whose troubles all came because she was too ready "to count the world well lost for love." Queens, alas, have not the privilege of their subjects to follow wherever Love beckons.

Zweig sees her as before ever she was out of her cradle, and betrothed to the Dauphin of France as a child of tender years, Mary became Queen of France in her teens and a widowed ex-queen in her early twenties. Reared in the gay courts at France and loving the sunshine and lightness of French life, she had to return to the penury and dourness of the Scottish court. It was the time when John Knox was calling down fire and brimstone on pleasure-seekers, and blasting God from the pulpit of St. Giles whenever a theologic adversary died.

Mary's downfall, as depicted by Zweig, is of a kind familiar enough in fiction—the tale of life, to all newspaper readers. To advance her claim to the English succession she married Darnley, the youthful great-grandson of Henry the Eighth, and committed the wilely mistake of falling passionately in love with him. The worst passionate is accurately used, for the sickly Dauphin had been no husband in the physical sense. Darnley in his youthful vanity tyrannized over his bride, and when the disillusioned Mary showed innocent interest in her secretary, David Rizzio, Darnley committed the unpardonable act in the eyes of the Queen of having Rizzio slain in the Queen's presence.

Bothwell, swashbuckler and seducer of women, came to Mary's aid in her vengeance on Darnley, and himself became the object of the Queen's passion after he had used force to gain his will. Thereafter there was an added reason why Darnley should die and marriage with Bothwell be speedy. It was in her flight from Scotland after the defeat of her troops under Bothwell, and Elizabeth's insistence that Darnley's death be probed, that led to Mary's long detention in England and her death eleven years later on the block.

Much of the case against Bothwell and Mary is contained in letters and poems in French in a silver casket found in Bothwell's house after his flight. They tell the story of their relations, of Mary's readiness to sacrifice all for Bothwell and of her horror at the necessary death of Darnley. Defenders of Mary have suggested that the letters are false and a forgery, but Zweig points out that neither Mary at the time, nor anyone for two centuries after, suggested they were forged. Strongest evidence of all for their genuineness, he says, are the writings themselves.

"Who was there in Scotland of that day," he asks, "capable of producing a whole cycle of poems in the French tongue, and at such short notice?"

Yet he does not reproach Mary. Though Darnley's death was a crime, it was a crime passionel, committed by a woman in a psychological condition that made her virtually irresponsible, he finds.

It's a fascinating study, if you're not afraid of having to stay up till 3 a.m. to finish "Mary, Queen of Scotland and the Isles," once you start.

Eczema And Psoriasis

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

Eczema is marked by inflammation of the skin and is caused by a fundamental toxemia. It is characterized by itching, burning, and the formation of various kinds of skin lesions. It is significant that the Greek word of eczema means "bubbling out" and when eczema is present, there is considerable reason to believe that poisons from within are actually bubbling out through the skin.

Any treatment directed to the irritated surface will not reach the real cause of the trouble and will produce only temporary relief. To permanently relieve this type of skin irritation, it is necessary to first remove the cause. The chief cause of eczema is a systemic toxemia induced by wrong habits of living such as over-eating, the over-consumption of sugar and starches, the use of inharmonious combinations of food, sluggish intestinal elimination, etc. The best treatment I have found is that treatment which will eliminate the toxins, and the most rapid way to accomplish this is to use the fast in some form.

Chronic eczema is the more common type and may prove troublesome to the patient over a period of years. However, eczema may also occur in an acute form, marked by an acute inflammatory skin condition. Chronic eczema may be accompanied by skin blemishes of various kinds, including pimples or papules; blisters or vesicles; and elevations topped with pus, called pustules. The patches may spread, or the old ones may dry up as new ones break out. In some forms there is considerable oozing of a sticky fluid, which, when dried on linen, produces stiffening of the fabric. This type is referred to as "weeping" eczema and as it clears up, crusts may form. In another type referred to as "dry" eczema, there is no fluid and dry scales result rather than crusts.

A severe case of eczema will induce intense itching and the patient may be tempted to scratch vigorously. Eczema may also be accompanied by a burning, stinging, smarting sensation, redness, and perhaps thickening or hardening of the skin. In some cases, in which the irritation is most marked upon the hands, deep cracks or fissures may form which are slow to heal.

Eczema is found at every age and both infants and elderly patients are not exempt. This disorder is not contagious and if one member of the family develops it, the others are not thereby endangered.

Eczema usually clears up without difficulty when a fasting and dieting treatment is used. The patient should take a five-day fast on fruit juice, and is advised to drink plenty of water in between the fruit juice feedings. A local treatment is also beneficial, is that given over the affected area with the ultra-violet ray light. The ultra-violet ray treatment is particularly good in chronic cases and the skin should be exposed for a sufficient length of time to produce a pealing-off process which will bring out the fresh, clear skin from underneath.

In cleansing the skin, it may be advisable to try cleansing the affected area with sterile cotton dipped in olive oil, if the use of soap and water seems to irritate the condition.

Psoriasis is similar to eczema in that it is produced by a chronic poisoning within the body. It is well-known that psoriasis is difficult to eradicate successfully by ordinary external treatment. Most physicians agree that treatment which appears to be effective at one time may fail at another, even in the same patient. No external remedies have been found which can be depended upon to obtain satisfactory results in all cases at all time.

In tomorrow's article, I will continue the discussion of psoriasis and will outline for you the treatment I suggest. WATCH FOR THE ARTICLE.

Horoscope

By MARY BLAKE

On October 3 above all things avoid an "I told you so," attitude. It will have an irritating effect, which is likely to cause an outburst of anger. Picking flaws in either someone's work or character is likely to be dangerous. Business may show an inclination to be spotty. It is important for the success of any friendly gathering, that those who participate should be selected because they have something in common. Married and engaged couples, and those no longer fancy free, are apt to find that any kind of teasing, especially if it involves sarcastic reference of a personal nature, has unlimited potentialities as a disturbing element.

If a woman and October 3 is your birthday, you are probably blessed with a wonderful disposition. You should have excellent nerves, so it must take a good deal to ruffle your temper or get you upset. There is every reason that you should enjoy great popularity in home, office or social life. Be careful not to allow flattery to make you vain or supercilious. Your wedding ring ought to be symbolical of two lives in one, which means happiness can be expected.

The child born on October 3 generally, when it reaches preparatory school age, develops an enthusiastic spirit that is ready to lend itself on the first hobby or subject that attracts its attention.

If a man and October 3 is your natal day, a well-balanced, vigorous personality should assure successful progress.

As every period of Canadian prosperity in the last 40 years has coincided with Liberal administration the electors might very reasonably come to the opinion that there is a reason for the recurring coincidence.—Winnipeg Free Press.

On This Date

A Day in Canadian History —o— By FRED WILLIAMS

On this date in 1758 the first legislative assembly in Canada met at Halifax. Curiously enough this parliament was forced upon the colony by Downing street, which has been so often accused of blocking colonial self-government.

As early as 1754 the colonial office and the law officers of the crown ruled that Governor Lawrence was acting improperly in carrying on with a council only and on May 7, 1758, the governor was instructed to set about convening an assembly; but Lawrence dallied. If the King was in a hurry to give his Nova Scotian people self-government Lawrence and his councillors were not. It was not until January, 1757, that the council passed a proposed constitution for the legislative assembly. That was just a "stall" and nothing further was done for a year. In February, 1758, the colonial office administered a severe rebuke to Governor Lawrence, which brought him to time and on May 20 he submitted that despatch to his council, which, seeing that there could be no further delay, consented to the creation of an assembly.

Elections were held; the first assembly convened; it elected Robert Sanderson as its speaker; and it then unanimously resolved that all its members would serve without remuneration for that session! What a contrast to the legislators of today!

Five days later the legislative assembly passed the first act of any legislative body elected by the people in British America, so that the house of assembly of Nova Scotia may well be considered the mother of Canadian parliaments. It was not until 1773 that the assembly of Prince Edward Island met; 1786 that the first legislature of New Brunswick assembled and 1792 before Lower and Upper Canada had their assemblies.

TO ABOLISH CAPITALISM

Editor Bulletin: To raise hogs, horses, cattle, sheep and grow wheat for profit is not only legitimate but scriptural. The Lord blessed Job and Abraham by increasing their wealth. They thereby became capitalists. To labor for profit means to labor for Capital and to destroy Capital means to destroy all ambition and incentive for labor. Every normal man works first for a living and, that being secured, he works for that competency needed in old age or in sickness or the requirement of his family. The banks represent the profit and thrift of the country, because the money they do business with is the money of thousands, if not tens of thousands, of stockholders, on which they receive dividends. To wipe out the Capital of the banks would destroy the profits of a multitude and probably impoverish a majority of them. The family as a unit is a part of the economic and social structure of our country. To destroy Capitalism would destroy the independence and self-respect of the family group, tend to a retrograde movement involving the nations and bring our people back to tribal status, the same as the blacks of Africa. This is a free country and men are found capable of advocating all sorts of senseless and wild theories such as to abolish Capitalism, which find supporters only amongst those who possess nothing and therefore have nothing to lose. WILLIAM COCHRAN.

STREET RAILWAY PROBLEM

Editor Bulletin: Having read a letter in your valuable paper regarding city business, from a Young People's Movement of the city, we would like at this time to back that movement to the best of our ability, as a young men's organization. At the last council meeting the above problem came before that council regarding change of shifts of day and night runs. The city council must realize that the request was made by the junior men, but greatest factor of all was the names of 9000 of our citizens that studied this request and from their point of view saw fit to try and make the city council realize that there was a principle involved also that this request was also backed by members of the other unions of the street railway.

It has also been pointed out to the council that seniority is not involved, also promotion. The request only means that the night men get a share of the day runs. Let the council think this over. 9000 of our citizens have spoken.

Yours truly,
YOUNG MEN'S ORGANIZATION.

ARMAGEDDON ON WAY

Editor Bulletin: In reply to Mr. F. J. Speed's article in the Mail Bag, September 26, I would inform me about Armageddon. If a man cannot see war just ahead of us —and plenty of it—he is blind, deaf and blind to the truth, and deaf.

I never attacked Social Credit as he claims and state in his article. I only attacked Mr. Aberhart's religious views, especially the immorality of the soul, eternal torment and trinity theory which I claim is not true, but totally unscriptural, illogical, unreasonable and unjust.

And I affirm that the battle of Armageddon is at the door and will shortly prove to be a reality.

T. J. SHEPHERD.

"REAL" POLITICS

The election campaign is being carried on in a gentlemanly way so far. The country has not been stirred up by personalities. It is different down in Mississippi. One of Huey Long's satellites made a nasty crack at Senator Bilbo of that state, and here was the Senator's reply:

"When the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith intimates, insinuates or charges that I went to New Orleans last week or any other time in my life with $25,000 in my pocket, is a contemptible, dirty, vicious, pusillanimous, with-malice-afore-thought, damnable, self-made liar."

And remember the political campaign in the U.S. is not till next year.—Lethbridge Herald.

SAY IT WON'T WORK

The success of Mr. Aberhart's Social Credit party in the province of Alberta is a rather depressing revelation of the folly and credulity of the uninstructed electorate. It is a success of gross, open, palable political quackery. Mr. Aberhart's scheme is based on the well known Douglas Social Credit scheme which is even more grotesquely fallacious —indeed, when Major Douglas was invited to Alberta he condemned it as wholly impracticable, though he offered to help in evolving another plan suitable for the province. . . . The whole thing is sheer, unmitigated nonsense, and we can be but one experiment of a Social Credit government in this Canadian province.—London Truth.

Erasing Poverty From The National Picture

By R. T. ELLIOTT, K.C.

An old established perspective is very adhesive; and it is extremely difficult to realize, in looking at a nation divided into rich and poor, that this division is made by choice and not of necessity. We can, to the national profit, and to the individual profit of every person resident in the nation, efficiently provide that the division shall be between rich and prosperous instead of between rich and poor.

You may be aided in realizing this by remembering that just about a century ago the established divisions in the world were rich and poor and free people and slaves. The wiping out of slavery was only accomplished by great agitations and a great war. Practically every argument urged against the wiping out of slavery must be repeated in fighting a movement for wiping out poverty.

There is no more right to keep people in poverty than there was to keep people in slavery. Once you realize this truth, you will be ready to accept and work for the adjustments necessary to wipe out poverty.

These adjustments are very definitely defined:

1. Entirely ending public debt on a principal and interest basis; because such debt has, in practice, been found to be unpayable and unbearable.

2. Substituting for public debt, a national legal tender, secured for retirement by a two per cent sinking fund on each and every source of revenue freed from bonded debt liability by the use of legal tender.

3. Retiring and destroying in each year the amount of legal tender collected by means of the sinking funds.

4. Relieving producers of natural products from the cost of obtaining money at interest to pay wages; by advancing legal tender to them, free of interest, on account of such wages an official function instead of an individual discretion; and securing repayment of these advances by means of a sales tax and an export tax according to whether the products are sold in domestic trade or exported.

Provision whereunder the cost of basic products delivered at each community in Canada shall be uniform.

All these adjustments can be made without taking away anything from anybody. There will be no loss by taxpayer, railways, bondholder, or anybody else; but all the forces producing poverty will be destroyed.

A rough and barely complete description may be that the government can go into active co-operation with producers instead of visiting them only in the persons of tax collectors who get money to pay interest on public debt, which must be added to cost of production. This addition to cost of production is sufficient to keep poverty in existence.

Any time a majority of the electors declare themselves in favor of the necessary adjustments, poverty can be abolished.

CHAPTER XLVIII

IMPULSIVELY Jo put her hand against Todd Barston's cheeks, stood on her toes and kissed him. Then she hurried to her room to obey his orders. The aviator, his mouth half open, watched her go.

He turned suddenly to Peyton behind the desk. "Thanks, friend," he grinning! Call the Crestmont airport!" Barston started for his own room. Digging further into it, turned over his shoulder. "We'll have to borrow the Inn's car."

Five minutes later, her heart singing, Jo Darien was in the car beside Todd Barston. They hurtled toward the airport at such reckless speed that conversation was almost impossible. But Jo did manage one question while she held with both hands to the door.

"D-do you think we'll find him?"

Eyes straight ahead, Barston hunched his shoulders. "If we catch him at the yacht club we're lucky. But if he's already sailed. . . ." His ensuing silence was disencouraging expressive.

Soon they were in sight of the air field. Barston's plane had been wheeled from the hangar. It was tiny, snub-nosed, almost like a child's toy. Jo remembered that this was Barston's special sh p, designed by him to create a new speed record as an advertising stunt for a public utilities company. Although he did not need its speed for ordinary flying he had kept the plane for his private use.

As they walked across the field, Barston said, "Your job has plenty of what it takes to get there, Jo. I'm going to give her whatever you fan stand. She needs it and so much for you just signal and I'll throttle down."

Jo nodded. "I hope I can take it, Todd."

In another moment she was in the cockpit, seated so low that her head was about even with the edge. Ahead of her she glimpse the helmet of the taller Barston, and without a reassuring glance he began taxiing across the field. Suddenly the plane plunged into the air so swiftly that Jo's head shot back against the cushion. She had never dreamed of such breathless speed. It was almost as if the law of gravity had been reversed and the plane was diving instead of climbing. They had hardly cleared the tops of the trees when Barston leveled out, increasing his speed. Jo's heart was pounding fiercely, and despite the roaring she seemed to have difficulty breathing. Was she imagining this, or was she really going to be unable to stand the terrific speed of this snub-nosed ship? In sudden panic she wondered how she might signal Barston, as he had suggested. Certainly she couldn't make herself heard above the wind and the unbelievable roar of the motor. And peering through her goggles about the cockpit, she saw no speaking tube or other device by which she could get his attention.

Then, raising her head, she saw Barston turning to see how she was getting along. He nodded his head questioningly—and Jo, taking heart, smiled and nodded in reply.

The snub-nosed plane plunged on. . . .

* * *

It seemed to Jo that they had been in the air not more than a couple of hours when Barston throttled down, began circling as if to land. For a moment she thought something must have gone wrong, but when she peered over the cockpit she was astonished to see the city spread out below her.

Barston's landing was swift and perfect. Jo hardly realized the plane had stopped before she saw him standing on the ground with his arms outstretched to help her down.

"I'll telephone the yacht club," he told her. "There may not be a moment to lose."

Still breathless, Jo ran after him into the long, low building. Nervously she smoked a cigarette while Barston disappeared into one of the booths to telephone. It seemed to her that he would never emerge, but when at last he faced her she knew before he spoke that they were too late.

"He—he's gone, Todd?"

Barston nodded quickly. "The yacht sailed last night."

Wordless, Jo sank on one of the benches. She pulled her helmet from her tousled golden head and when she raised her eyes again Todd saw that they were wet. He spun suddenly on his heel and rushed to the dispatch desk of the airport office. In a few minutes he returned, smiling grimly.

"How badly do you want Doug Morley?" he asked her.

Jo met his slow gaze solemnly. "I—I'd go soon be dead as without him, Todd."

"Well, Jo, if that's how you feel, we'll try it."

"What do you mean?" she asked, rising from the bench.

"We're getting into an amphibian plane equipped with radio telephone. The weather's not so good off the coast, but—are you game?"

"You mean—you mean you're going to find the yacht?"

"I hope so, Jo." Todd said seriously. "But look here, this is no child's play, you know."

Jo nodded quietly. "Let's go."

* * *

Not 10 minutes later they were over the city again, heading out toward the coast. Jo, beside Barston in the cabin of the big plane, watched his intent, sure hands. He had said the weather was bad off the coast, but that for they were flying against a blinding afternoon sun and the air was clear and crystal.

Soon they were over a sheet of glass which was the ocean. It reflected the sun like blinding ice. In all that expanse Jo saw not one boat which might be a yacht.

She leaned toward Barston's ear. "Do you have any idea at all what course to take?"

He nodded, spoke loudly over the roar of the motors. "I'm getting out as far as I think he could have gone since last night. Then we'll try the radio telephone. He pointed through the windshield of the cabin. "Fog coming."

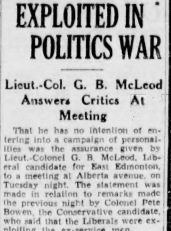

In a moment they were in it, thick and heavy, a seemingly impenetrable mass. Jo grew afraid. She hardly knew why. The sun went weak, then seemed to leave them altogether—leave them submerged in a huge gray cloud that had no beginning and no end.

After what to Jo seemed hours of flying, Barston clamped headphones to his helmet, began speaking into the transmitter. She read his lips rather than heard him calling, over and over again: "Barston . . . calling Yacht Juno." Over and over he gave his position and called Marsh's yacht. But nothing happened—nothing except the fog and drone of the motors—until Jo sank back against the seat in weary disappointment.

Suddenly Barston sat more erect, throttling down the ship and motioning her. Then the drone grew again, then listened, his face breaking into a happy grin. "Stand by," he yelled into the mouthpiece. "I'm landing, Juno. Stand by to receive valuable cargo."

Jo felt the big plane circling cautiously, and within a few moments she was startled to see the lights of a ship in the fog.

"Send cut your tender," Barston

HEPBURN TALKS WAY WESTWARD

METCALFE, Ont., Oct. 2 — Swinging back into his native province from a speaking tour in the Maritime provinces and Quebec, Premier Hepburn, of Ontario, in an address here Tuesday claimed extension of markets for Canadian products and monetary reform as the two outstanding issues in the general election. called again. Then, quite suddenly, the motors stopped, and Jo felt the plane settle to the water. Barston had to hold tight to the seat to keep from being pitched against Barston with the roll of the ship.

"They're sending out a power tender," Barston said, peering through the fog-misted glass of the cabin. His voice was queer. It was tired and husky.

"Will you be able to get into the air again all right?" Jo asked.

He did not turn from the window. "Sure . . . sure, I'll make it. One nice thing about fog is that it's not a fair take-off for one of these things. If there was wind now—" He turned suddenly to Jo, took off his helmet and goggles. Listen, Jo —I've delivered you to Doug. Now—but if ever you want to come back—"

Jo nodded quickly. "I . . . I didn't think there were any men as fine as you are, Todd."

He grinned at her. "Sure. Too bad you aren't in love with me. But—that's not the way the thing works. I guess." He stopped, peered out the glass again. "The tender's coming alongside. Take off your shoes and stockings. The first wing will be plenty slippery —and this has got to be quick or they might damage the plane. Ready?"

Jo nodded, holding to his arm while he opened the cabin door, almost lifted her to the wing. They headsomeone in the tender shouting. "The owner sends his compliments, sir, and wants to know if there's anything you need."

"Not a thing," Barston said. "Just tell the owner to take darned good care of—of this passenger."

Douglas Marsh was peering over the side of the Juno when Jo came up the ladder. "Good Lord! Jo—Jo!" He took her in his arms, squeezing her so hard that her drenched clothes left water on the deck. "Jo, darling, I'd have been out there myself to get you—but I thought I'd let him one of Barston's elderate jokes."

"It it . . . a joke?" asked Jo slowly.

For answer, Marsh turned to the man at the rail. "Benn, find some dry clothes for Miss Darien. Tell the captain to keep the ship to her course. And tell him to be ready to perform a marriage ceremony—tonight!"

Through the fog came the roar of Barston's plane, the sound of pontoons struggling against the clutching waves. Then the drone grew steady and unfettered, sounded directly above them.

Marsh drew Jo into his arms again. "I thought I'd lost you. Jo. I was escaping to try to forget you."

"Well," Jo warned him happily "don't you dare try to forget me from now on?"

THE END.

DENIES VETS EXPLOITED IN POLITICS WAR

Lieut.-Col. G. B. McLeod Answers Critics At Meeting

That he has no intention of entering into a fight on personalities was the assurance given by Lieut.-Colonel G. B. McLeod, Liberal candidate, and the Liberal policies are broad and sufficient enough for me to discuss without bringing in criticism of other people.

"Nothing is further from the truth," he continued, "than any attempt on our part to use the ex-service men. I have doubtless the same belief as Colonel Bowen that their affairs should not be brought into politics. But it is true that a committee of veterans came to me and offered their services.

WELCOME SUPPORT

"Some say that all is fair in love, war and politics, but that is not the case. At the same time as overseas comrades I was glad to welcome the support of the ex-service men. Since that time they formed a committee which began to organize and I have attended their meetings. I am opposed to their introduction into politics, for the ex-service men must look to all governments for remedying conditions under which they now labor."

Lieut. Col. McLeod said that he had pledged himself that his attitude in regard to reduction of pensions. To this his reply is that the day he ceases to receive a pension has to go before a board each year, and only two offers his pension is reduced. Col. McLeod's contention is that after a man has been before a board several times the circumstances of his case must be well known, and any pension he receives should be a fixed minimum, and if anything else is done about the matter it should be an increase.

PENSION CUTS

Continuing, the candidate said his figures as to the amount by which pensions have been reduced by the Bennett government had been questioned. Quoting from a return made to the House of Commons by Hon. Ian Mackenzie, he stated that for the five years covered by the years 1931 to 1934, pensions had been cut down in 2,580 cases, making a total of $2,391,000, and in 717 cases the pension had been discontinued, with a reduction of $2,374,272, in all for the four years.

Col. McLeod had stated that the reductions totalled approximately six million dollars, and the figures were open to all to see them in Hansard.

Turning to other matters Lieut-Colonel McLeod said that he wholeheartedly supported the decision of the Liberal leader to the effect that if returned to office he will immediately appoint a commission to investigate public works for the unemployed so that they may be given work for a fixed period, the policies of monetary reform, the establishment of a central bank and re-establishment of world markets have brought back a measure of prosperity to the country.

UNEMPLOYED RELIEF

In relation to unemployment the candidate said that he absolutely opposed any of the two great railway systems of the country, declaring that the absorption of the Canadian National Railway by the C.P.R. will throw 35,000 people out of work, including their families will mean a total of 225,000 persons, many of whom will have to be provided for by government relief.

Other speakers at the meeting included Mrs. A. E. Clarke, G. H. Van Allen, M.L.A., Clayton McLennan.

W. Cleveley was in the chair.

Broadens Scope Of Coast Dock Probe

VANCOUVER, Oct. 2.—Vancouver Harbor representatives Tuesday concluded a two-weeks' presentation of evidence before Mr. Justice H. H. "I no longer regard this dispute as a local one, but rather as one of national importance," the commissioner remarked. "Before I make my recommendations to the federal government if I do, I wish to get figures on the amount of shipping which is done in this port."

British Health League Unit Is Established

Launching into a program which aspires to regiment the young people of Edmonton and Alberta into a branch of the International Health and Strength League, of which Miss Prunella Stack of London, England, now visiting Toronto is leader, thirty enthusiastic girls met in the Corona hotel for dinner on Tuesday evening. Sensible health-building diet, physical exercise, and regular hours of sleep, combining for a good healthful living are emphasized by the club members and concluding the banquet most of the girls went to a gymnasium class.

In speaking to the guests present, Mrs. George Hogg, outlined suggestions for the season's program, which will include dances, swimming parties, skating parties and hikes, some of the affairs to be arranged in conjunction with the young men's branch of the League.

WANT 100 MEMBERS

Their object, within two months is to have a membership roll of 100, when they will submit their names to headquarters in London, and select badges.

Miss Helen Burns, who has been invited by the group to assist with the organization and act as councillor, was present at the dinner. Mrs. Hogg will be chairman. Miss Sheila Service was made secretary and Miss Dorothy Cooper was appointed treasurer. The first meeting will be held on Monday, October 14, when plans for the season's activities will be discussed.

On the banquet tables were silver bowls of marigolds and green candles in silver holders. A corsage of roses was presented to Mrs. Hogg in honor of her birthday, celebrated on Tuesday by the Corona.

Those present included Mrs. Margaret Watts, Mrs. Mabel Lindsay, Mrs. Fern Christophers, Mrs. A. C. Dempsey, Mrs. J. C. Bowen, Mrs. Hogg, Miss Helen Burns; the Misses Emma Haynes, Tiny Boris, Maureen Stuart, Barbara Stuart, Louise Larsen, Mollie McHugh, Alice Wood, Irene Hill, Dorothy Cooper, Clara Thorburn, Dorothy Frith, Mickey Arrowsmith, Marjory Martell, Grace Shore, Sheila Service, Minnie Hendrickson, Edith George, Aline George, Sadie McKinley, Fern Scott, Luella Harnie, Joyce Jackson.

ANGLICAN YOUNG PEOPLE PLAN BIG CARNIVAL

On Saturday evening at 8 p.m., October 5, in Christ church parish hall all branches of the Anglican Young People's Association are sponsoring a big get-together carnival. It is being organized by a representative from each city branch and the executive of Christ Church A.Y.P.A.

It is the first big event of the season and is being planned by the committee and the diocesan council in an effort to bring all members of the A.Y.P.A. and their friends and relatives together.

BRIDE SCHOOL OPENS

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—There was big news for prospective bridegrooms today.

It was an announcement that New York brides-to-be, whose education along domestic lines has been neglected, may attend a bride's school scheduled to open here Nov. 5.

The course will be an intensive training in the scientific management of domestic help and the finer points of being a successful and gracious hostess.

Weddings

McAFEE—ALLEN

With a charming autumn setting the wedding of Sheila Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Allen, and Millen McAfee, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McAfee, was solemnized in Christ Church on Saturday evening. Rev. Godfrey Gower, the rector and Rev. Christopher Story of St. Mark's officiated.

Autumn leaves, rowan berries, flowers and fruits formed the background for the ceremony, most effectively, for it was an all-white wedding. The bride was in white taffeta with bouffant skirt touching the floor, and her veil was tulle with chantilly lace. Her slippers were white satin and she carried lillies of the valley.

Miss Vera Wentworth, maid of honor to the bride was in white satin, and carried violets. Miss Anne Young, bridesmaid, was in white chiffon, and carried pink carnations, and the flower girl, little Sheila Holland wore a floor length frock of white chiffon and carried yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. Philip Allen was best man, and the ushers were Mr. David and Mr. Gordon McAfee, Mr. Thomas Neale, Mr. Thomas Dippie and Mr. Val McAfee.

A reception was held in the Corona hotel at which Mrs. Allen was smart in a gown of black lace, with which she wore red roses. Mrs. McAfee wore a gown of violet shade, and her picture hat was chosen to match.

Following their honeymoon to Waterton Lakes the bride and bridegroom will make their home in Red Deer.

Eastern Wedding Of Interest Here

Known to many Edmontonians through his art is Mr. Lionel G. Fosbery, the famous Canadian sculptor, uncle of Mrs. Frank Jost Newson of Edmonton, whose marriage to Miss Mona Hannah Fitzgerald of Ottawa took place in Trinity Church, Ottawa, on Friday, September 20. Both Mr. and Mrs. Fosbery have visited the west on several occasions. The bride is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Fitzgerald, of Hamilton, Ont., and granddaughter of the late Hon. George Hamilton, M.P., founder of the city of Hamilton.

REMEMBERING St. Francis of Assisi, the story of whose life is lovely to little children and to all those whose hearts feel compassion for living things that suffer, World Day for Animals is to be celebrated throughout the world on Friday, October 4. Initiated in 1928 by the World League against Vivisection and for Protection of Animals (English branch), the idea originated with a worker in Czechoslovakia and was communicated to the honorary secretary of the world A.V. League by Miss D J. Winter. On this day it is hoped that people all over the world not only will think of animals, but will try to help them.

On October 4, World Day for Animals, will be celebrated in all the civilized countries. On that date St. Francis is believed to have left his physical body to enter the higher life; his influence still lives in the world. On October 4, the humane workers put forth whatever efforts are possible to focus the attention of the public on this subject, by means of speaking, writign letters to the newspapers, and the holding of animal parades.

To emphasize the place animals have in God's plan of creation; to direct attention to wrongs inflicted upon animals in sport, commerce, amusement and science; to focus thought on the speediest means of abolishing such wrongs; and inspire action on behalf of the suffering animals, is the intention of the day. St. Francis of Assisi was the friend of everything that suffered or rejoiced, the man to whom every other man was his brother, and every animal, the sheep in the fields, the birds in the branches, the donkey on which he rode, took refuge in his kind protection, and he spoke of them as his younger brethren.

WHITEMUD

The tune of youth sang blithely in their veins,
The eager autumn played her colored lay—
The old Saskatchewan lay drugged with reds—
Woodpartridge murmured in the undergrowth
Sly magpies peered from trees grown sad and gaunt,
And everywhere the wine-toned bushes flung
Their song, half saddened melody, half taunt.
A hundred campfires lit the shore and wood
That night—gay voices floated round and round
And you and I turned pages in the book,
And many were the things the twilight found.
For campfires draw old secrets from their bed—

ALUMNI ASS'N AT UNIVERSITY MEETS FRIDAY

A special meeting of the Edmonton branch of the University Alumni Association will be held in the Arts Building of the University at 7:45 p.m. on Friday. At this meeting important business held over from the annual meeting held last June will be dealt with. The appointment of a new executive and the question of whether the branch will continue its educational work for the unemployed are two important items on the agenda.

Prof. Scorns Noble Impulse As War Cause

TORONTO, Oct. 2.—Opinion was divided at a meeting of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom Tuesday on the question of whether Canadians would pool their natural resources with the rest of the world so each country would get a fair share, if the League of Nations decided to concentrate on economic rather than military sanctions to avoid international conflicts.

Prof. F. H. Underhill said Canadians would not. Rev. Dr. Salem Bland said they would. The professor scorned "noble impulses" which took men to fight for "democracy or collective security." Canada would fight on the side of Britain merely to preserve her standard of living. She depended upon Britain's ability to continue absorbing 51 per cent of Canadian exports.

Public Men Of Canada Not Respected

TORONTO, Oct. 2. — Beverley Baxter, Canadian who rose to be editor-in-chief of the London Daily Express, told the Canadian Women's Press Club here Tuesday, lack of respect for men in public life had been going on too long in Canada.

"I do deplore that in Canada, where there is so much that is magnificent and democratic, there is a lack of respect for your men in public life. It has been going on too long. At a trying time it is right to look to the government for leadership, yet so long as you discredit your public men, you can have no faith in politics," he said.

"You are going to the election with four parties. It will be a miracle if there is not a stalemate. That means only a step to eight parties and that a step to the German 27, and then the Canadian Hitler, the Canadian Mussolini, and then—the deluge."

Those born in a new country do not study the past enough to understand the future. Canada had one of the finest average citizenships in the world.

"Y" Notebook

Beta Pi Gamma club at the Y.W.C.A., organized for young business and professional women held its first meeting in the "Y" cafeteria on Tuesday evening, with about 45 members present to join in an opening sing song, led by Miss Pearl Alton, with Dorothy Stewart at the piano.

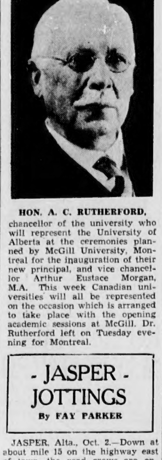

Louise Field occupied the chair, with Pearl Topolnisky as secretary pro-tem. Interest groups were voted on by ballot and the following groups were chosen "Christmas Craft," "Knitting," "Art of Entertaining," and "Contract Bridge," as a fourth choice if the club membership should prove large enough. The fourth choice was not announced at the meeting, through an error in counting.

Refreshments were served and thanks tendered to the Girls' Work Committee, Mrs. E. P. Wellwood and Mrs. S. Golden for this pleasant addition to the evening's fun. Next Tuesday evening interest group outlines will be presented and Mrs. R. Sherman of the Women's Peace League will speak to the club on "Peace in a Changing World," to which young women of the city are invited.

- JASPER - JOTTINGS

By FAY PARKER

JASPER, Alta., Oct. 2.—Down at about mile 15 on the highway east of town, the road crews are engaged in a battle with the beavers, who seem to have very different ideas about road building. Each night the tireless little animals erect their dams to the detriment of the roadbed, and next day the men pull them down.

On Sunday, church services in Jasper were well attended with special rally services in the Jasper United church with appropriate addresses morning and evening by the pastor, Rev. A. Hayes. The Anglican church of St. Mary's and St. George's was beautifully decorated with fall fruits, flowers and vegetables for the Harvest services held that day, and the choir rendered special harvest music in the evening with a fitting sermon by Rev. R. E. Bradshaw.

Last Friday night the S. S. S. held their first social evening of the fall season in the Masonic hall, and the entertainment took the form of an apron and necktie party. Each lady wore a dainty little apron and her escort a matching tie. There was a good turnout of members and friends and the party was in charge of the executive committee of the club.

Next Sunday everyone at Pyramid Lake there is to be a big boat race, and if the event comes up to the pictured details on the posters about town it will be worth while attending. The "Adelaide" owned and operated by R. B. Miller, and the "Arcadia," captained by Tom Cheesemen, will be in the race over the course. Much heavy private betting has been going on, with the odds about even as the boats are identical in size and shape and with identical outboard motors, and both captains modestly admit that they can outsail the other. The trophy that goes along with the sizable purse, to the winner, was purchased fifteen years ago for a canoe club that somehow didn't materialize.

Sadly the local nimrods are putting their fishing tackle away for the winter, as Monday saw the closing of most of the favored spots in the Park. The season of 1935 as a whole has been a wonderfully successful one in all the open areas, with excellent catches and limit creels the rule for all. Whether trolling or fly fishing, the results have been satisfactory, and lately in the Miette river, particularly, variety added a zest to the sport, for you never were quite sure just what you were catching, as rainbows, Dolly Vardens, speckled, and graylings can be found there.

On Monday evening Norman F. Priestley of Calgary addressed the C.C.F. local of Jasper at a public meeting held in the Parish hall and spoke at length on the manifesto of the C.C.F. He ably handled his subject, and asked for the support of the C.C.F. candidate in this riding, George Bevington, one of Canada's outstanding authorities on financial reform, and kindred subjects. As one of the leaders in the C.C.F. movement, Mr. Priestley was able to answer satisfactorily the questions from the audience.

Miss Kaye Steele entertained the members of the Dominoes at her home on Monday evening. Those present were: Mrs. Eric Thompson, president; Mrs. Wm. ELECTORATE IS LOSER BY OWN PUBLIC MONEY in the last five years," said the Liberal leader.

In foreign affairs the government had sought to blast its way. The loss of the Japanese market for Canadian goods was one of the results of blasting. A Liberal party would pursue a policy of co-operation and conciliation in dealing with other nations and in dealing with unemployment and other domestic problems a humane policy which would have regard to the feelings and personalities of the people.

NOT SO GENEROUS

The wheat board act was the work of members of all parties, said Mr. King. It was not a Conservative or a Bennett product. Yet Conservatives were telling the people "Bennett saved the wheat growers, Bennett gave the wheat grower $150,000,000."

"I knew Mr. Bennett was a wealthy man," said Mr. King. "I had been told he was a generous man, but I never knew he could or would give away $150,000,000. What authority is there for this statement? How did Mr. Bennett do it and when?"

LONE CREDIT

No credit was ever given to other Conservative members of parliament for the wheat policy, said Mr King, adding, "When you have a leader who can't even give due credit to his own supporters you are getting pretty far on the way to a dictatorship."

Sectional parties were springing up in Canada as a result of the erroneous policies of the past five years, said Mr. King. Canada needed political parties covering the whole country which would promote national unity and not create disunity.

TO ALBERTA S. C.

"Let me say this to my Soiial Credit iriends," said Mr. King. "There is on old saying, 'Don't put all your eggs in one basket. You have got a basketful of Social Credit eggs in Alberta and you don't know yet whether they are any good or not. You have already been told you will have to wait 18 months to find out and you know what happens to an egg when you keep it 18 months. Wouldn't it be well to keep those Alberta eggs in one basket and have another basket for Dominion affairs, one that will serve you if the other should not?"

NEED PARTY STRENGTH

Liberal policy was what the whole party had agreed upon, said Mr. King, but it was a minimom. Much more might be done as the party moved forward. If there were persons of radical thought, earnest in their pursuit of new policies they should come into the Liberal party and make their influence felt, not stand on the sidelines and form new groups which could at most have the effect of returning the Conservative party to office, and defeating the "one party which above all else through united efforts is seeking to make broad Liberal policies prevail."

MUST TAKE TIME

A political leader, could not be expected to adopt radical policies as soon as they were proposed. He himself was radical at heart but he had above all things to keep his party together and carry it with him. In unity there was strength and without unity a party could do nothing.

LONG UNITED

"If I speak to you tonight," he said, "with a greater degree of authority than any other political leader can speak with, it is because for 17 years I have been leader of my party and during that time it has been united, and never was more united than it is now. We stand today as a great strong army from coast to coast, stronger, I believe, than at any time in the history of the party."

By its public works program the Bennett government was trying to "debauch the electors with their own revenue," Mr. King charged. Funds voted to provide work for the unemployed were being used for political purposes to confer favors on the government's friends. Money was being spent by millions on the eve of the election; contracts were being let without tender.

HOPELESS METHOD

This demonstrated the hopelessness of the method employed by the government in dealing with unemployment. The Liberal party proposed a national commission which would work out a great scheme of employment on the basis of service to the state rather than service to a few political favorites.

YOU YOUNG SINGLE MEN
Do You Save Money Regularly?

Perhaps your ready answer to that question is "yes." You put something into the savings bank each week or month. Fine!

But do you leave it there? At the end of the year does your bank balance show an increase over the year before?

Here is something that will give you a real incentive to save money regularly, an Imperial Life Endowment Policy.

And when the date of maturity comes—which may be a time you will most need money—you will receive $1,000, $2,000, $5,000 or whatever the value of the policy is—in cash.

Or you may decide to have a monthly income for a certain number of years or for the balance of your lifetime.

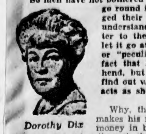

More than that, your Imperial Endowment Policy will be of great importance if you marry. In any case it will help you to achieve your ambitions.

Think it over. You may make many investments . . . but none will give you greater satisfaction than an Imperial life policy. You are probably insurable now; later you may not be. Your name and address will bring you full information.

Study Vagaries That Attract Your Wife

Little as women understand men, men understand women even less, because from time immemorial every woman's prosperity and good times have depended upon her knowledge of how to work some man, whereas men have had no such necessity to study feminine psychology.

Dorothy Dix

So men have not bothered to try to find out what makes the wheels go round in women's heads. They have just shrugged their shoulders and declared that nobody can understand a woman and relegated the whole matter to the realms of unfathomable mysteries, and let it go at that. A man brands his wife as "queer" or "peculiar" or "unreasonable," and accepts the fact that she has "ways" that he cannot comprehend, but he doesn't make the slightest effort to find out why she is as she is or the reason that she acts as she does.

Why, the average man doesn't even know what makes his middle-aged wife spend her time and her money in beauty shops having the color of her hair changed and going through the agonies of being parboiled and pounded to a pulp and scalped instead of staying stout and comfortable as God and time have made her. Nor does he understand why she endures the agonies of semistarvation in a vain attempt to acquire a boyish figure.

He thinks it is just some strange vagary of the feminine temperament, forever beyond the comprehension of man, that makes a woman enjoy martyrdom, it doesn't occur to him that all this suffering is being endured for his sake in a futile effort to appear young and beautiful and glamorous in his eyes. He never suspects that she doesn't know that by the time a man has been married to a woman for ten years she looks perpetually good to him or he doesn't look at her at all.

Nor can any man ever understand a woman's mania for shopping. His idea of spending a perfect day is not in a department store pricing everything from kitchenware to matched pearl necklaces without the slightest intention of buying either one. He buys what he needs when he needs it and makes the transactions as short and snappy as he can, and he can't understand why his wife gets such a kick out of buying things as she does out of nothing else on earth, nor why she is really more thrilled at the sale of a gown in a store window than she is by the grandest scenery in the world.

He doesn't know that shopping is to a woman what getting drunk is to a man. When anything good happens to a woman she rushes out and buys herself the new dress or hat that is an extravagance. When a man meets with misfortune only too often he drowns it in drink. When misfortune comes to a woman she consoles herself by going shopping. Buying her mourning has kept may a bereaved widow from committing suicide on her husband's grave. Shopping gives a woman in her imagination all the beautiful things she would like to have. And it consoles her for all the things she doesn't have. Whatever happens to her, there is one joy that can never be taken from her. There are always the store windows.

The husband thinks that, maybe, women are just naturally born with wet-blanket dispositions and that nothing can be done about it, and he never even dreams his wife's whining is just trying to turn the spotlight on what a good, efficient wife and mother and housekeeper she is. She's fishing for compliments, and all she wants is to have her husband tell her that she is the grandest helpmate that any man ever had, and that he never tasted such angel food as she bakes.

Same way about nagging. A man can't understand why his wife can't say a thing once and let it go. Nor why she tells him every morning of his life that two cups of coffee are bad for him, or to take his umbrella, or wear his galoshes, or watch out for automobiles and generally treats him as if he were an idiot child that didn't have enough sense to look out for himself. He can't understand why daily and hourly she does the things that irritate him to death and makes his life a purgatory, and he never knows that it is because she loves him so much that she has no thought about anything else but him and what concerns him, and that she lives in perpetual dread of some accident befalling him.

And few men understand that as a general thing when a wife is extravagant it is because she thinks that her husband is neglecting her. It's her revenge for his taking her for granted. Many a husband pays with French millinery and furs and jewels for the soft talk his wife hungered for and didn't get.

And many a man has to eat bad cooking and live in a sloppy house because he neglects to praise the dinner, and his wife says to herself, "What's the use of working myself to death for a man who never gives me the glad hand?"

All of which goes to saying that the most profitable studying that any man can engage in is trying to find out why his wife does the way she does. DOROTHY DIX.

What's What

Question—I am going away to college in the next month and I would like to know if every one will be wearing fall clothes or will still be wearing summer clothes. I have been invited to several rush parties, including teas, breakfasts, luncheons, buffet suppers and dinners from 5 to 7 p.m. Please advise me what kind of clothes will be correct to wear for these occasions. What should one wear to a dance from 8 to 10 p.m., when it does not specify whether formal or informal?

PUZZLED FRESHMAN.

Answer — Summer ended last week. Autumn clothes are correct in October and November. Most of the early college dances are informal, or, at most, semiformal. The boys wear tuxedos; the girls dress in simple, sleeveless frocks, with dinner jackets. As at home, afternoon clothes are worn at teas. Ask a sophomore for definite information about dressing for rush parties. In some colleges undergraduates pride themselves upon their preference for informal clothes at all times.

Question—Is it correct to use candles on the luncheon table at noon? If not, what would you suggest for a centerpiece when flowers are not available? M.P.

Answer—Excepting upon a dark day in mid-winter, lighted candles are out of place at noon. At this season a centerpiece of peaches, plums, grapes, oranges and apples would be appropriate and decorative. But, surely, you may gather wildflowers and wild ferns in the fields for a floral centerpiece.

The Debunker

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph.D.

Modern studies of heredity have proved that no son is ever just like his father, even in a single characteristic. Each trait of a child is composed of the united traits of the father and mother, and is never exactly like either. One of the parental traits may dominate the other, so that the child resembles one parent more than the other, yet the other parent's characteristic is present and modifies the dominant one. If a son has a nose like his father's he may marry and pass on to his own son a nose like his mother's. In every trait a child is exactly half maternal and half paternal and any resemblance of one over the other is entirely superficial.

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL. COCHRAN Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

The pumpkins were unloaded and the man who ran the display stand said, "You have done a fine job, tots. The farmer's in real luck.

"You've helped him with his work, so he should be as happy as can be. I'll bet he's glad he let you have a ride upon his truck."

"You bet I am," the farmer said. "That's one time that I used my head. Now, I am going to pay them back for everything they've done.

"Before I'm through, they'll see the fair. I plan to take them everywhere, and it will not be my fault, if they don't have heaps of fun."

* * *

"Well, let's get going," Duncy said. "Some big bolloons are just ahead. Let's watch the fellow blow them up. He must have lots of breath.

"His cheeks puff out each time he blows, and he looks funny, goodness knows. I'll bet if one balloon bursts, it will scare the girls to death."

The farmer then said, "Well, tots, I would really be real glad to buy a fine balloon for everyone." "How nice," wee Goldy said.

"I hope the one I get won't break. A blue one is the kind I'll take. The rest of you can pick the white, or brown, or green or red."

* * *

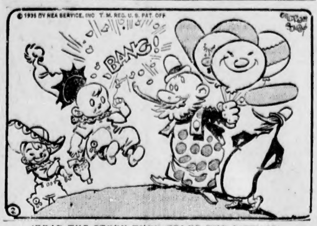

So six balloons were ordered and the Tinies gathered 'round the stand and watched the fellow blow them up. It was a funny sight.

The man soon said to Coppy, "You can blow one up, if you wish to." "Okay," replied the lad, and then he blew with all his might.

The farmer thought it would be slick to play a friendly little trick, so he walked close to Duncy, whose balloon was floaing 'round.

He touched his big cigar to it. Of course it made the rubber split. The big balloon went bang, and Duncy jumped right off the ground.

Flank Steak Can Be Made Very Tempting

By MARY E. DAGUE

It seems to me that when I was a girl, washday always was soup meat day. We'd have a rich beef soup, with vegetables or rice or maybe noodles for luncheon, then the soup meat, with boiled vegetables and a tasty dessert, for supper.

Sister Mary

Now, I'm not recommending soup meat for washday. The point is, washday emphasized the cheaper cuts of meat, taught us how good they could be when they were left to cook as long as necessary. And in these days, when economy is so unfortunately imperative, the lesson comes home opportunely, for there still is more of the cheaper cuts of meat available than the dearer.

FLANK STEAK IS ONE OF THEM

If you have never tried a flank steak, do so. Some morning, when the oven is hot for baking put in this rolled flank of beef. Then at dinner time reheat the oven for an hour and bake the extra vegetable and pudding while the meat is finishing.

The meat will cook some in its own heat, and the heat of cooling oven in the morning, so an hour at dinner time is plenty of time to thoroughly cook the dish.

You see there is no waste in bone and fat in flank steak, alquite tough. For this reason have though the fibres of the meat are the butcher score it well on both sides when you order it.

ROLLED FLANK STEAK

One flank steak, 1 teaspoon mustard, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 3 tablespoons vinegar, 2 cups coarse stale crumbs, 4 tablespoons melted butter or meat drippings, 1 tablespoon minced onion, ½ teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons hot water.

Make a paste of mustard, 1 teaspoon salt, sugar and vinegar. Spread meat with this paste, cover with the stuffing and roll like a jelly roll. Do not roll too tight to have room to expand. Bind securely with a soft cord, dredge with flour and bake two hours in a moderate oven.

To make the stuffing, mix 1 teaspoon salt, onion and pepper with bread crumbs, melt the fat in the hot water and pour over crumbs. Cover and let stand five or ten minutes. Mix lightly with a fork, keeping the stuffing light. The mixture should be just moist enough to hold together, but not sticky or pasty.

Instead of using the stuffing, spread the meat with the paste as in the preceding recipe. Cut meat to fit casserole. Oil casserole well with bacon fat. If the steak is cut in three pieces, put one-third of a mixture of vegetables in the casserole, then a layer of meat and so on until all is used. Add boiling water, about 1 cup, to five cups of vegetables, cover closely and bake an hour and one-half in the morning and one hour at dinner time. Serve from casserole.

The long cooking and the vinegar break down the tough tissues of the meat and leave it very palatable and nourishing.

A good combination of vegetables is 1 to 2 cups diced carrots, 2 cups diced potatoes, ½ cup dried turnip, and one large onion. These make a very savory dish with the meat.

Tomorrow's Menu

LUNCHEON: Rice croquettes with cheese sauce, sliced tomatoes, toasted cornbread, sweet cider, doughnuts.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. Shepard

"Teacher of Teachers"

PRETTY WORK

Here is an interesting hand sent in by Mrs. G. R. Wilson, Glens Falls, N.Y. Although the bidding was unusual, South finally arrived at the best call of 3 no trumps. The opening lead was the 5 of hearts. North and South alone are vulnerable. East has doubled, and both he and declarer should use what appears to them to be the best strategy. How many tricks can South win against the best subsequent defence of East, whose double renders him the defender's captain.

North: ♠ J 8 6 2 ♥ 6 4 3 ♦ K 9 3 ♣ A 7 4
West: ♠ 5 3 ♥ 10 8 7 5 ♦ 10 6 4 ♣ J 8 3 2
East: ♠ A 10 9 4 ♥ A K 9 ♦ Q 5 ♣ Q 10 6 5
South: ♠ K Q 7 ♥ Q J 2 ♦ A J 8 7 2 ♣ K 9

Win the first trick with East's K of hearts. His best chance to defeat the contract is to employ his high honors to establish clubs. Have him lead back his lowest club. South's K will win. To go game South must win two tricks in each black suit and five diamonds, or the substitution of a heart trick for one of the spade tricks. Play the hand any way you like. Leading a high spade from the short end of that suit is the most normal method of offence. Naturally East will not win the first spade trick, but when the K is followed by the Q it is probable that East will take his ace of spades, as he has that suit stopped again. If East refuses the second spade trick, waiting for South to lead a third round of spades, South can force East into the lead with the ace of hearts, by leading the Q of hearts. Suppose that East puts up his ace of spades when South leads the second high honor from his hand. He will clear clubs by leading the 6 of that suit. West's J will force dummy's ace, leaving the suit established for East, who still has entry in his ace of hearts.

North: ♠ J 8 ♥ 4 3 ♣ 7
West: ♥ 10 8 7 ♣ 3 2
East: ♠ 10 9 ♥ A ♣ Q 10
South: ♠ 7 ♥ Q J ♦ 8 7

Here is a 5-card problem, with South in the lead and bound to win two tricks in diamonds and the J of spades, let East do what he likes. Lead next to the last diamond and let go one of dummy's hearts. East must let go a club, to prevent dummy's spades from both becoming good. Lead the last diamond and let go dummy's last heart. If East lets go his ace of hearts both declarer's hearts become good and 5-odd will be made. East can assure himself a single trick in clubs, by letting go one of his spades, or he can make certain of a single spade trick, by letting go his good club. In any event the declarer should win 4-odd.

Pretty Mouth Depends On Use Of Lipstick

By GLADYS GLAD

In past ages lips have been a source of much tinkering for beauty's sake. Women of East Africa bored holes in their lips and inserted sharp wooden pegs to enhance their charms. Egyptian damsels wore precious stones embedded in their lips for beauty's sake. And gals in Ethiopia were accustomed to puncture their lips and force brass hoops through them, in order to adorn themselves.

In this day and age all that we girls want to adorn our lips with is a charming smile. For we know that even the plainest of Plain Janes can make an engaging and attractive appearance if she has a pleasing smile. That doesn't mean, of course, that one must cultivate a professionally cheery grin. A perpetual smile becomes sort of mask-like and unnatural when viewed often enough. A smile has to have sincerity behind it to be convincing. If a girl has the makings of a charming person in her, her smile will naturally be sweet, and she won't have to force herself to make it convincingly so.

NOT INDEPENDENT ON SHAPE

A charming smile doesn't depend so much on the shape of the mouth as it does on what you do with your mouth. You always can modify your lips and improve the shape of your mouth with lipstick, you know. But if you keep your mouth corners continually pulled down, your face is certain to take on an unattractive, discontented expression, no matter how you use your lipstick.

To really cultivate an expressive smile, however, you must also see to it that you keep your lips mobile and flexible. Some girls smile in such a stiff, forced manner that you would think their lips were made of cast iron. Chewing, and the movements involved in whistling and blowing bubbles are excellent exercises for keeping the lips supple. Another effective exercise is pronouncing the vowels A E, I, O, U aloud, exaggerating the lip movements at the same time. Such exercises increase the expressiveness of the lips, and develop the warm curves of their outlines.

GRACE MOORE

WIDOWER WITH THREE BOYS IN NEED

Hope Mission would like, through some of the readers, to find response to the following request and others like it. This letter is from a man whose wife died six years ago leaving three small boys:

"I am writing to you to help me as I am trying to get some blankets or cloth to make some for winter. Last winter we nearly froze in bed. My neighbor will make up quilts for me if I can get anything to make up. I have three boys to support and being just a homesteader, have no wages. Having to look after the home, makes it hard for me to go out of the district to work. So I am trusting you will send me a couple of blankets, or some pants or coats or cloth to make a quilt; and if you can, some lining for it."

ASPECTS OF LAC. ST. ANNE

Calm, 'neath the blue of vaulted sky,
A whispering breeze—a robin's cry
Wherewith the air is filled
With music sweet and gay.

Rough 'neath the gray of sultry sky
A drop of rain—the thunder's cry
And lo! the waves roar past
They hit the rocks, and die.

Your Children -

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"I think you had better leave it here," said David's father quietly as the boy exhibited the newly purchased "pony" with which he hoped to gain knowledge at college.

"What?" David stared incredulously. "You never minded when I used one in high school."

O. R. Barton

"I know, and now I regret it exceedingly. It did help, I'll admit, as it gave you an idea of what it was all about. But I think it's time to stop and travel on your own ticket."

"What's eatin' you, Pop? I have some wits. I know how to study and everything. I get the other things all right, don't I?" Lots of schools approve of them, ponies I mean, and anyway I only need it now to save time."

"Then you don't need it at all. Listen, Dave. It isn't so much that you are getting help in a subject that bothers you, but it is for another reason that I am asking you not to take it along."

"Wah'ts thta?" asked the boy curiously.

THE FOURFLUSHER

"Uncle Mack? My stars, how could I be like him? If I'd had his good job, all the good jobs he's had, I'd be doing something about it now instead of lying around telling everybody how good I was and moaning like a sick calf because I could only get fifteen a week in a printing office."

"It's all Mack is worth," remarked his father reflectively.

"Uncle Mack. All he's worth? Why, he's made as high as four thousand a year. He has had lots of positions that paid him that."

"Your Uncle Mack was the sweetest little boy God ever made," continued the man as though Dick had not spoken "He was the baby of the family. But he hated work or any kind of worry and all through his boyhood things were excused and made as easy for him as possible.

"People liked him so well he was not only permitted to soldier when the rest of us had to work like Trojans, but it seemed as though someone was always boosting him beyond his desserts. When he got through school, old Mr. Wick gave him a place in his bank over a lot of other fellows who knew the work. Mack didn't know a thing and never tried to learn. He had to fourflush his way. He learned what he thought was more useful than banking, David, he learned to bluff.

LACKED BACKGROUND FOR SUCCESS

"He lost out eventually, but the next job was easy to get with the name of the bank behind him. Mr Wick kept silence, but it would have been better for Mack if the truth had been told. One job succeeded another, sometimes even at a bigger salary than before. But I always knew he was skating on thin ice, that is, on his good clothes, good looks and good fellowship. There was no background, nothing he had gotten himself. The more he pretended to know it all, the more money he made for awhile.

"He always traded on the big names of the firms he had worked for before. Jones would say, "Well, if he has worked for Smith and Company, I guess he must be good.' Do you see what I mean? Mack 'ponied' his way along and when the showdown came he had no resource in himself. I think I'd rather you failed in Latin and could not go on with your law, than to feel you need some artificial prop that will let you down."

"Maybe it isn't best for a fellow," admitted David. "I guess it's silly to pretend you're smarter than you are. You'll be found out anyway sometime or other."

He laid the little book on the table and went up to finish his packing.

I have rather nice blankets in my guest room which naturally I don't want to send to the laundry too often. Can you tell me how to keep them fresh and clean? K. S.

Answer—Many persons solve this problem by providing thin coverings to be spread over the blankets at night. These may be of cambric, nainsook or even very thin silk. Sometimes they are lace-edged or embroidered and add a distinctly decorative note to the room. These coverings save the blankets and are much more easily laundered.

FINGER WOMAN IS IDENTIFIED IN OLD CASE

Mrs. Nellie Muench of St. Louis Embroiled in State Trial

MEXICO, Mo., Oct. 2.—Mrs. Nellie Muench, St. Louis society woman, averted her gaze Tuesday as a state's witness identified her in court as the "finger woman" in a 1931 abduction.

Adolph Fiedler, 315-pound former justice of the peace, was positive in his identification. The witness who appeared here Monday with a body guard of deputy sheriffs, armed with sub-machine guns, testified Mrs. Muench had frequented a St. Louis resort he formerly conducted, and had appeared there with Angelo Rosegrant, Bart Davit, Felix McDonald, Tommy Hayes and Tommy Wilders, alleged participants with Mrs. Muench in the kidnapping of Dr. Isaac Kelley, wealthy St. Louis specialist.

GOT INFORMATION

Fiedler said that Mrs. Muench, during meetings in the resort, mentioned several possible kidnap victims, and when Dr. Kelley was decided upon, said "she could get the information to get Kelley out at night.

Mrs. Muench, red-haired and comely for her 43 years, who is embroiled in another court affair in St. Louis county growing out of her announcement, six weeks ago, that she had become the mother of a baby boy.

SERVANT SUES

Anna Ware, young unmarried Philadelphia domestic, has obtained a writ of habeas corpus, asserting she and not Mrs. Muench is the mother of the baby in the Muench home. In announcing birth of the child, Mrs. Muench said, "It is a gift of God in my time of need." Although married 25 years, Mrs. Muench had been childless.

Would Align Coughlin In Roosevelt Plan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—A personal effort, to align Father Charles E. Coughlin and his followers behind President Roosevelt in the 1936 campaign was planned Tuesday by Senator Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma Democrat.

He told reporters that in a conference scheduled for later this week with the Detroit priest, he will urge Father Coughlin to back the new deal for achieving "a Liberal Democratic party."

LINE PARTIES ALL WRONG: C.C.F. CHIEF

SUDBURY, Ont., Oct. 2—The orthodox Liberal cry of "Laissez Faire," "Hands Off Business," may have been applicable in the pioneer days; but it was now out of date, J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, said at a political meeting here last night.

Equally wrong was the Tory doctrine of protection, because it was not the living standards of the people but the big interests whom the Conservative policies protected. The textile industry in Montreal was the most highly protected in the country, yet it paid the lowest wages.

With regard to the railway problem, his party was "absolutely opposed" to Sir Edward Beatty's scheme of amalgamation. The rights of the workers must be the first consideration. If there was any amalgamation, it must come under public and not private ownership.

Answering questions, Mr. Woodsworth believed the senate should be abolished. He did not think there should be unrestricted immigration.

Team May Join Alberta League

LLOYDMINSTER, Oct. 2.—It is expected that the Lloydminster Prolites will be organized again this year under the management of William Hoffman, who piloted them a long way in the Saskatchewan playoffs this spring. This team may be included in a league that will probably include Vermilion-Vegreville and a couple of Edmonton teams. It is some years since an Edmonton team has journeyed to the border town for a hockey clash.

STORE IS BURNED

PROVOST, Oct. 2.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the Kirrinmuir store and home of Mrs. G. Fleming, while Mrs. Fleming and her son and daughter were at a theatre. There was no insurance.

Handcar Spill Likely Stopped Wreck Of Train

FAUST, Oct. 2.—Upsetting of a railway handcar is believed to have averted a train re-fitlment on the line near the station recently, although a member of the extra gang here was injured in the spill. He recovered quickly as the hurts were not serious.

Hot lunch was being taken on a handcar to the crew by two of the gang. Hearing the distant whistle of the freight train, they were watching the curve ahead and did not observe the ten-inch plank lying across the rails until they were thrown violently from the track.

One man was injured and, bleading badly about the head, was rushed to the doctor at High Prairie on the train, which pulled to a stop at the scene of the accident, where it might otherwise have struck the plank. Boys are believed to have placed the plank on the track but police have not located the guilty ones.

Snyder Party Reports Upon Trip Trophies

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The Snyder Canadian expedition, which has just completed what was described as the most extensive scientific expedition ever to go into north-western Canada, obtained more than 200 specimens of mammals, among them the first specimens of black-tailed white sheep and elk to come out of the north.

George G. Goodwin, a member of the expedition, made the announcement in an interview Tuesday in the American Museum of Natural History, where he is assistant curator of mammals.

The expedition, led by Harry Snyder of Chicago included his daughter, Dorothy Snyder, and S. J. Sackett of the Canadian Exploration Company.

ISSUE MORE CURRENCY IS STEVENS CRY

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Oct. 2.—Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstruction Party leader, addressing a grey north audience here last night declared he would start the wheels of constructive activity moving in Canada with the aid of increased note issue.

In explaining the basis on which this would be accomplished he said Canada holds gold to the approximate value of $80,000,000. Under the international definition of sound currency Canada is entitled to issue notes to four times the value of that gold. Also, year after year, there is mined and sent out of Canada new gold. A part of this might be retained in the Dominion as a basis for further note issue.

"It is suggested I propose to turn on the printing presses and issue unlimited notes," he said. "I have never said anything of the kind."

But Canada's idlemen "who were beaten into subjection at Regina" could be put to work at fair wages, by issuing notes on a perfectly legal basis.

WAR VETERANS MEET TO DISCUSS URGENT NEEDS

Delegation To Liberal Leader Submits Report

Gathering Urges All Ex-Service Men to Unite in Strong Force, Pressing Claims.

Urgent needs of the ex-servicemen for which government intervention is sought were discussed at a meeting of veterans held at the McLeod Building on Tuesday night called to hear the report of the delegation interviewing the Right. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King.

They include the request for free hospitalization for all ex-servicemen and their dependants.

Any relief given to be a government charge, and thus to ensure equal treatment for ex-servicemen throughout the Dominion. The care of the ex-servicemen should not be left to the municipalities. The amount provided to be adequate. Sixty per cent of the ex-servicemen in Edmonton are said to be receiving relief.

Pensions for widows of ex-servicemen who had contracted for disabilities, and who died from causes which cannot be attributed to war services.

All pensions discontinued or reduced during the period from 1921 to 1930 to be restored, subject to the right of the pension authorities to change their investigations.

No difference in pensions due to rank.

The withdrawal of the War Allowance Act, and adequate pensions to be given returned men at 50 years of age on their retirement from the labor market.

An income supposedly received not to be taken into consideration, where men are dealt with under the War Service, the reason being that men in certain cases are in possession of property from which they receive no financial benefit whatever.

MEMO FILED

The above and other matters were included in the memorandum handed to the Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, when he received a delegation of ex-servicemen consisting of H. Walker, M. Fitzmaurice, J. McCarthy, N. Campbell and L. B. Howard.

The report made by the delegation to the effect that the Liberal leader had stated that he will, if given the opportunity, immediately deal with the difficulties now confronting the returned men, proved with the greatest satisfaction by the meeting.

It was decided to ask support for the two Liberal candidates, Lieut.-Colonel H. H. Hunter for West Edmonton and James A. MacKinnon in West Edmonton.

An urgent appeal was made at the meeting that all ex-servicemen will unite in one strong body for the purpose of insisting to press their claims. It was further stated that the veterans must ally themselves with the government, who will give them the greatest consideration.

"Every person who served during the Great War, particularly in France and Flanders, whether wounded or not, has suffered disabilities. The privations, hardships and mental strain through which they went has reduced the vital energy, causing them to the strenuous labor that cannot be traced to any definite cause by medical men, and which would not appear on the medical sheets. The evidence of mental strain is shown by the fact that strong men suddenly went crazy right in the trenches.

"Medical science is not an exact science, and in the majority of cases it is quite impossible for any medical man to state positively that a certain disease condition is due to a specific cause. It is therefore, quite unfair to expect the man applying for a pension to prove conclusively that a certain disability was definitely caused by war services.

FREE HOSPITALS

"There should be free hospitalization under present circumstances for all ex-service men, and their dependants. With respect to the ex-service men, it is possible, if not probable, that much of the need for hospitalization arises from the effects of war services. Further, practically 60 per cent of ex-service men are on relief as far as this city is concerned, and it is thought unfitting that ex-service men and their families should be dependent on municipalities. It is submitted that services given to their country entitles this consideration from the government of Canada.

"It is submitted that the widows of ex-service men should be recognized war disabilities and who died from causes which cannot be attributed to war services should be entitled to a pension. It is impossible to say that war services did not contribute to their death due to the fact that medical science is not yet an exact science.

NOT CORRECT

"There is overwhelming evidence that the medical sheets are not correct. In many cases the disablement received at dressing stations did not appear on the medical sheets. Many were accepted as A1 and every person applying for a pension should have the benefit of the doubt or the burden of proof should be shifted from the applicant to the authorities of the pension board.

"We request that the pensions payable to all men during the years 1921 to 1930 be at once restored, subject to the right of the pension authorities to change them after proper investigation. We feel that the reductions made were made for economic reasons and that the throwing of this burden on returned men is quite unfair.

"It is represented that there should be no difference in the scale of pensions due to rank.

"It is recognized that the officers had greater responsibilities in service, but these were compensated by pay in the form of gratuities and pensions. Many officers are now in receipt of pensions which are not sufficient to maintain them in the position in which they were placed by the government.

"The withdrawal of the War Allowance Act, and adequate pensions to be given returned men at 50 years of age on their retirement from the labor market.

"An income supposedly received not to be taken into consideration, where men are dealt with under the War Service, the reason being that men in certain cases are in possession of property from which they receive no financial benefit whatever.

"An income supposedly received not to be taken into consideration, where men are dealt with under the War Service, the reason being that men in certain cases are in possession of property from which they receive no financial benefit whatever.

MEMO FILED

"The above and other matters were included in the memorandum handed to the Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, when he received a delegation of ex-servicemen consisting of H. Walker, M. Fitzmaurice, J. McCarthy, N. Campbell and L. B. Howard.

"The report made by the delegation to the effect that the Liberal leader had stated that he will, if given the opportunity, immediately deal with the difficulties now confronting the returned men, proved with the greatest satisfaction by the meeting.

"It was decided to ask support for the two Liberal candidates, Lieut.-Colonel H. H. Hunter for West Edmonton and James A. MacKinnon in West Edmonton.

"An urgent appeal was made at the meeting that all ex-servicemen will unite in one strong body for the purpose of insisting to press their claims. It was further stated that the veterans must ally themselves with the government, who will give them the greatest consideration.

"Every person who served during the Great War, particularly in France and Flanders, whether wounded or not, has suffered disabilities. The privations, hardships and mental strain through which they went has reduced the vital energy, causing them to the strenuous labor that cannot be traced to any definite cause by medical men, and which would not appear on the medical sheets. The evidence of mental strain is shown by the fact that strong men suddenly went crazy right in the trenches.

"Medical science is not an exact science, and in the majority of cases it is quite impossible for any medical man to state positively that a certain disease condition is due to a specific cause. It is therefore, quite unfair to expect the man applying for a pension to prove conclusively that a certain disability was definitely caused by war services.

FREE HOSPITALS

"There should be free hospitalization under present circumstances for all ex-service men, and their dependants. With respect to the ex-service men, it is possible, if not probable, that much of the need for hospitalization arises from the effects of war services. Further, practically 60 per cent of ex-service men are on relief as far as this city is concerned, and it is thought unfitting that ex-service men and their families should be dependent on municipalities. It is submitted that services given to their country entities this consideration from the government of Canada.

"It is submitted that the widows of ex-service men should be recognized war disabilities and who died from causes which cannot be attributed to war services should be entitled to a pension. It is impossible to say that war services did not contribute to their death due to the fact that medical science is not yet an exact science.

NOT CORRECT

"There is overwhelming evidence that the medical sheets are not correct. In many cases the disablement received at dressing stations did not appear on the medical sheets. Many were accepted as A1 and every person applying for a pension should have the benefit of the doubt or the burden of proof should be shifted from the applicant to the authorities of the pension board.

"We request that the pensions payable to all men during the years 1921 to 1930 be at once restored, subject to the right of the pension authorities to change them after proper investigation. We feel that the reductions made were made for economic reasons and that the throwing of this burden on returned men is quite unfair.

"It is represented that there should be no difference in the scale of pensions due to rank.

"It is recognized that the officers had greater responsibilities in service, but these were compensated by pay in the form of gratuities and pensions. Many officers are now in receipt of pensions which are not sufficient to maintain them in the position in which they were placed by the government.

NEW PROTEST AT PLIGHT OF BEARS IN ZOO

Alberta Humane Society Presses for Better Accommodation

Smarting under criticism directed at their organization by animal lovers who are incensed over the conditions under which bears at the Edmonton Zoo are living, officials of the Alberta Humane society have again taken up with the city commissioners the matter of providing new accommodation for the animals.

Suggesting that if finances do not permit of the erection of a new bear pit at this time the animals be shipped to Jasper National Park and released there soon enough to learn to provide for themselves for winter before the snow comes, or alternatively that they be immediately destroyed, the society points out that at the time a zoo for Edmonton was mooted, they objected to its establishment, foreseeing the difficulties which have now arisen.

FINANCIAL CONDITIONS PREVENT

Replying to the latest suggestion Commissioner Mitchell points out that the main complaint were so far as the sanitary condition was concerned, which provision applies more strictly to the summer months. Under the circumstances it may be unavoidable to continue matters as they are until next spring when possibly steps may be taken either towards improving the bear pit or adopting the alternative of releasing the bears.

Commissioner Mitchell also states that the civic administration is very anxious to improve conditions as far as possible but that the resources available are strictly limited owing to the heavy obligations of the city in providing for relief for the thousands now under burdens of serious proportions.

H.B.C. CHIEF ON DUCK HUNT

Returning from a hurried trip to Toronto and Montreal, George W. Allen, K.C., Winnipeg solicitor and member of the Canadian committee of the Hudson's Bay company, member of the H.B.C. London committee and president of the Great West Life, came to Edmonton Wednesday and prepared for a hunting expedition west of this city.

Not after big game, the Hudson's Bay chief will blast at birds, Hungarians and ducks.

"I'll shoot day and night," he said when asked participation of several strenuous days of sport.

Plead Not Guilty To Trudel Robbery

Lawrence England and Elmer Severson appeared before Mr. Justice Tweedie of superior court Wednesday and pleaded not guilty to the daring daylight robbery of Trudel Furriers Ltd., in March of last year.

The two accused, Calgary youths, entered their pleas through counsel, not guilty after they appeared in court.

The trial is proceeding with E. B. Cogswell, K.C., appearing for the crown, and P. G. Thomson, K.C., defending.

vice, but these were rewarded by higher pay and greater comforts. But in civil life the effects of disabilities are one and the same, that is the privations incapacitated in civil life just as much as the officer by the same disability."

"With regard to proof of age among the older men, it is always possible to produce the usual government statistics, because none exists. It is often impossible to prove the contents of family Bibles or from the sworn statements of older brothers and sisters, because in many cases none such exist. In such cases proof of age should be made by the man's papers.

"It is represented that ex-service men and their dependants cannot compete with youth with its energy and that under present circumstances every effort should be made by the responsibility of the Dominion government and not of municipalities. It is not the intention that any objection can be made to the government making such arrangements with the province or municipalities by way of compensation as may be reasonable. That will insure equal treatment to all ex-service men. Many municipalities pay relief that is altogether inadequate.

PENSIONS NEEDED

"It is submitted that the War Allowance Act as administered at present should be dispensed with and in its place under present circumstances there should be given to an ex-service man an adequate pension on reaching the age of fifty on his voluntarily withdrawing himself from the labor market.

"Under the War Service Act income received from property is taken into consideration, whether the income is available to the man or not. There is the ex-service man who put his money into a house. Now the decreased rent of the house is taken over to pay interest on the mortgage and taxes. It is true that he is building an equity in this property, but he cannot live on an equity. There is another case of a farmer whose whole income from his farm is taken to pay taxes."

SINGAPORE IS "MODERN CITY VISITOR SAYS

E. A. Stevens Making His Second Round the World Journey

On his second 'round the world jaunt, E. A. Stevens, lawyer from Singapore, capital of the Straits Settlements, who takes an eight month holiday every two years, reached Edmonton Wednesday morning and will continue his journey Thursday to visit a married sister at Alaska, Sask., whom he hasn't seen in 20 years.

Singapore, important 'naval and air base on Britain's "Life Line" connecting the home country with Gibraltar, Malta, Port Said, Aden, India, Hong Kong and other British fortresses in Eastern waters, is not the "sinkhole of the world" as novels, magazine stories and the motion pictures often make out, Mr. Stevens was quick to explain.

MODERN CITY

"It may have been at one time," he said, "but today on the crude, grove swamps we have a modern, up-to-date city with all the comforts and conveniences of good western world."

"No, the city is not full of honkytonks, saloons, drunken sailors and dope-dulled natives," he laughed. "We have fine buildings and a large population of English-speaking whites."

Because of the soft, spongy foundation soil, the city can boast no skyscrapers, but can show off to a visitor a three million dollar race track on which race blooded bangtails imported from Australia and the British Isles, and while no "seventy days around the world" stunt in the back stretch, the turf fans keep Singapore's mutuel machines hot.

"We have our own air conditioning," explained Mr. Stevens, "and that's the fan. We sleep, dress, wash, shave, eat, play games, see movies and do everything, under fans."

"Life in Singapore is hot and, like real British settlements, dull," said Mr. Stevens.

EDMONTON AIR, TONIC

Edmonton's cool, bracing air and soft sunlight is a tonic to the Straits Settlements visitor, but he finds out "quasi prohibition" most irksome.

"I couldn't even get a beer on the train," he complained. "It took me by surprise. You should warn strangers of the hardship."

"Why not pack a few bottles in your bags?" suggested a thirsty newsman.

"It might be all right for Monday, but on Tuesday I may want some and I can't carry an assortment around," he laughed.

Mr. Stevens left St. John, N.B., as a small boy and has never returned. He finds life in Singapore with its Royal Yacht Club, two golf and four 18 hole golf courses, the three million dollar race track and other high priced forms of amusement, quite satisfactory.

ROAD REPORT

The Alberta Motor Association road and weather report for Wednesday indicates clear weather with roads in fine condition throughout the province.

A detailed report is as follows: Jasper highway: Weather clear; roads in good condition. Edmonton-Peace River highway: Roads good; weather fine. Edmonton-Wainwright: Weather fine; roads in good condition. St. Paul road: Roads in good condition; weather clear. North Battleford-Lloydminster: Roads good; weather fine. Edmonton-Camrose: Weather conditions clear; roads good. Edmonton-Provost: Roads in good condition. Edmonton-Mulhurst: Roads in good condition; weather clear All other points: Roads in good condition; no rain; weather clear.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Students will not be permitted to form political clubs at the University of Alberta but will be allowed to take part as public as individuals, according to a recent announcement by President R. C. Wallace. This ruling has been in effect for several years in the institution.

"What is your opinion of this order?" the B.I.R. questioned today's answers follow:

ALD. MARGARET CRANG: "I understand this ruling has been in effect for some time, and I am opposed to it. University scholars of today should have greater political consciousness. For it is only through an active interest in governments that the young people can bring about a better standard of living."

MISS THELMA ATKINSON, former student at the University of Alberta: "I believe this is a very wise ruling. It stands to reason that political clubs would be detrimental to scholars as far as their studies are concerned. Preparation of speeches and organization work necessary in the formation of student political bodies would mean less time for studies."

* * *

G. W. HAZLETT, merchant: "Political groups should not be formed at the university, in my opinion. If they were allowed, eventually they would be used to further the interests of some party and students would be affiliating themselves with political bodies. I think Dr. Wallace is perfectly justified in the view he has taken."

* * *

O. C. DOOLAN, citizen: "I see no valid reason why young people attending the university should not be allowed to organize political clubs if they so desire. The younger generation should be taught to think, and groups of the kind in question serve as a very good purpose to this end."

HUNTING PARTY TO HEAD NORTH

Equipped with still and motion picture cameras and a battery of high-powered guns, Carlisle Mucklow, manufacturer; Dr. G. H. Van Sanah and J. F. Buck, bank president, all of Shawnee, Oklahoma, came to Edmonton Wednesday morning and prepared to plunge into the wild bush country in the Rockies surrounding Jasper National Park.

The American big game hunters will use Brewster's ranch as the base of operations and both the railways and the Canadian National Railways are jointly looking after the arrangements.

"It's our first trip into your big game country," said J. F. Buck, "but from what I hear it's the best that a man can need to be. We have been to Mexico the past three years and decided to come to Alberta for a change of scenery."

The party will be away about 30 days and hope to bag a grizzly, mountain sheep and goats as well as bird game. The cameras, said Mr. Buck, will get as much use as the game guns.

Cabbage Record

HALIFAX, Oct. 2.—A cabbage with seven heads—six full sized and one smaller—is on display at the Nova Scotia exhibition. Art Trask of Coxheath, Cape Breton, the exhibitor, is claiming a record of some sort.

George Walker, K.C., C.P.R. solicitor of Calgary, paid a courtesy call on Premier Aberhart and members of the cabinet Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lazier were in Edmonton Tuesday en route by way home to Bashaw after visiting with Mrs. R. L. Burnett, Empire, Oregon, U.S.A.

The city building department has issued a permit to P. J. Gwynne for the construction of a frame and stucco store building at 9331 118 avenue at a cost of $3,500.

Tuesday, October 1, the first day that winter regulations for closing of gasoline sales after 8 p.m., went into effect was observed two sales, one at 8:40 p.m., and the other at 8:45 p.m., and will summons have been issued for appearance in court. The offences, reports said, occurred close to the police station and were in full view of an officer standing in front of the station.

BIGGER STORES REMAIN CLOSED FOR HALF DAY

Although civic regulations permit them to remain open on Wednesday afternoons during the hot summer months, larger departmental stores in Edmonton are continuing observance of the Wednesday half-day holiday for clerks and are remaining closed on the afternoon of that day, it is reported.

During April, May, June, July, August and September the early-closing law requires that clerks must be given a holiday Wednesday afternoon. During the remainder of the year, with the exception of December, however, merchants may remain open providing they give employes a half-day off some time during the week. No half-day holiday is provided for December.

WEATHER WILL CONTINUE FAIR

Tuesday was a day with cloud with the mercury touching a high of 70 At 3 a.m. on Wednesday it dropped to 43, and then commenced an upward climb.

On Thursday the sun will rise at 6:40 a.m. and set at 6:05.

At 3 p.m. on Tuesday the temperature was 70 and hourly readings until midnight were 66, 62, 59, 55, 52, 49, 48, 46, 44, and readings from 3 a.m. until 9 a.m. were 42, 46, 39, 40, 39, 39, 40, 46, 52.

EDMONTONIANS HURT IN CRASH

Charles Munton, 11446 93 street, well known city auctioneer, and Mrs. Munton, were both badly hurt in an automobile accident at Lehi, Utah, on September 21, according to word reaching the city recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Munton, who were on a holiday motor trip through the United States, were rounding a curve when injured when another car crashed head-on into their auto, at a high rate of speed. It is stated that the other driver was being chased by police and struck the Munton car as he rounded a corner.

Mr. Munton had three or four ribs broken, his chin cut so that stitches were necessary, his ankle hurt, teeth knocked out and many cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Munton received a broken jaw and also had glass cuts on her chin. Both were taken to hospital for a few days but are now able to travel again and are at present staying at the auto camp at Salt Lake City, Utah.

Mr. Munton's car was reduced to wreckage, so that he will have to purchase a new car to return home. The driver of the other car was sentenced to 100 days' imprisonment for his part in the accident.

Alberta Varsity Chancellor Leaves For McGill Service

Hon. A.C. Rutherford, Chancellor of the University of Alberta, left Edmonton Tuesday evening en route to Montreal, where he will present at the induction of A. E. Morgan, the new principal of McGill university. Dr. Rutherford, who is himself is a M.A. graduate as well as an honorary LL.D. of the University of McGill, is attending the installation of the new principal as the official representative of the University of Alberta.

A noon luncheon will follow the installation ceremonies and this in turn will be followed by a rugby game between Queens and McGill. Dr. Rutherford plans to be present for the luncheon and rugby game he will not the installation.

FREE HAND FOR ABERHART PLEA OF MACKINNON

Liberal Candidate for West Edmonton Outlines Party Policies

"If elected to parliament at Ottawa, I shall fight against any obstacle being placed in the way of Premier William Aberhart carrying out his Social Credit experiment which will have his support in every reasonable way so long as the decent interests of the Alberta people are not endangered by higher taxation," declared James A. MacKinnon, Liberal candidate in the West Edmonton constituency in addressing a meeting at Westmount school on Tuesday evening.

His statement followed the efforts being made by the Liberal party to bring back prosperity to the nation, to bring again the days of 1920-1930 when, under the premiership of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Canada enjoyed great prosperity.

He touched on the Liberal advocacy of unemployment insurance, which, with contributions from the Dominion treasury, would give an amount sufficient for food, clothing and shelter.

ENDORSE TRADE POLICIES

The trade policies of the Dominion Liberal leader were endorsed and Mr. MacKinnon drew attention to the tremendous trade enjoyed by the country while he was premier.

Aid. Hugh John Macdonald, speaking on behalf of Mr. MacKinnon, directed his attention to unemployment and the central bank. He stressed from his personal knowledge, some of the difficulties of administration of relief under present methods—the way relief had grown and the necessity for initiating measures to cope with unemployment.

He gave a clear explanation of the Central Bank and showed that whereas the people formerly had some control over finance, the people had now lost control.

TRADE REVIVAL ESSENTIAL

William Rea discussed the trade situation and declared a revival of trade was essential if the country was to economically recover. That other high tariff countries had seen their mistake and were now showing a desire to lower tariff, was a fact he said. He clearly showed the adverse affect of high tariffs on a large number of commodities.

A. C. Jamieson touched on the need of a freer flow of trade both ways before a return to prosperity could be effected.

J. T. J. Collisson, K.C., dealt with the set-up of the Bank of Canada and expressed vital portions of the Liberal platform, such as monetary reform, freer trade and greater attention to social questions.

Fifty Children Are Vaccinated For Paralysis

Fifty children were vaccinated against infantile paralysis in the city health and school medical departments Wednesday morning. Vaccine obtained from laboratories of the New York health department being used for this purpose. Treatments will be finished Thursday.

Edmonton health authorities have received about 350 applications for vaccination, but only 199 doses of the vaccine have been received in the city.

Dr. R. B. Jenkins, medical health officer, stated Wednesday that several of those who had applied for vaccination and who had been notified to appear for treatment Wednesday had not reported to the department. In such cases, second doses would be administered to others on the list, he said.

Military Orders

Parades: The squadron will parade at city headquarters, Queen's hotel, Edmonton, on Friday, Oct. 4, at 8.30 p.m. 8.30 p.m. Officers and N.C.O.'s members who have swords will bring them. 8.30 p.m. dismissal. Arrangements for Col. Pocock's visit. Dress: Service uniform.

Executive Council Meeting: The executive council will meet at city headquarters, Queen's hotel, on Wednesday, Oct. 2nd, 1935.—(Signed) J. B. Denley, Lieut., for O.C.

The officers and N.C.O.'s of "A" squadron, 19th Alberta Dragoons, will hold a meeting in the Victoria armouries, on Oct. 3rd at 20:00 hours.—P. Darlington, Lieut.

MOUNTIE IS LAW STUDENT AT VARSITY

Edmonton Mounted Police barracks has a student policeman as one of its new members, a tall youth, well over six feet, wearing a lance-jack's stripes, who will register this week in the law school at the University of Alberta.

Lance-Corporal E. H. C. Perlson, who arrived here Tuesday, is one of five members of the R.C.M.P. throughout Canada who will attend law school, a new move instituted by Commissioner Sir James MacBrien with the purpose of increasing the efficiency of the force.

One of the five men who qualified for this special training at Lance-Corporal James MacBrien, drill instructor of the St. John, N.B., detachment, who is the son of the commissioner.

"Lance-Corporal Perlson was transferred to 'K' division and I was instructed that he was to be permitted to attend law school," Assistant Commissioner H. M. Newson, commanding "K" division, stated.

This term, it is understood, one member is attending law courses at each of the following places: Dalhousie University; Halifax; University of New Brunswick Law School, St. John; McGill University, Montreal; University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon; and University of Alberta, Edmonton.

EX-SOLDIERS SAY COL. BOWEN IS MISINFORMED

Disclaiming the formation of an Ex-Servicemen's Liberal Association in East Edmonton, Major F. H. Perkins states that nevertheless the ex-servicemen are putting their weight behind Lieut.-Colonel G. B. McLeod, the Liberal candidate. Major Perkins says that he has the greatest regard and respect for Colonel Bowen, the Conservative candidate.

He adds: "We ex-servicemen cannot allow the occasion to pass without assuring the gallant soldier he has been misinformed. We in East Edmonton have never formed any Ex-servicemen's Liberal Association. We are ex-servicemen with Liberal sympathies and feel that in throwing our support to Colonel McLeod we are making a step in the right direction."

Police Court

Pleading guilty to obtaining goods and cash to the extent of $15 on three worthless cheques for $5 each, Vernon Hanson, 23 from Vancouver, was sentenced to three months hard labor, dating from today, to run concurrently with the sentence of a three-month term he is serving on a similar charge.

Hanson stated he had made restitution of all but 80 cents of the amount of $29 entailed in the former conviction and was willing to make good the present fraud. He declared he needed the money for repairs on a truck with which he had a hauling contract.

* * *

Mrs. Rounceville of Sturgeon M.D., who appeared for her son, Len Rounceville, a minor, charged with driving a car run at large on the roadside, was cautioned and assessed the costs of the court, the magistrate considering the $5 fine provided by the municipality to be extremely high.

* * *

Florence Sinclair, who pleaded guilty to "causing a disturbance by being drunk," was fined $5 and costs or 10 days, the crown stating that she had been fighting, swearing and bitten a man with her teeth.

* * *

Charles Young was dismissed when he answered a charge of driving without a driver's license. A license was produced in court and the constable could not remember whether he had been shown it or not.

* * *

For driving at an excessive rate of speed in the Garneau school area, Leroy Mattern was fined $2 and costs.

* * *

Cecil James pleaded not guilty to a charge of negligent driving laid following an accident in which his car struck a light fixture on 109 street. Clarence Hicks, who will also be tried for negligence. The case was not concluded at adjournment.

SCHOOL SUPT. NOW DICTATOR OF SYSTEMS

Board Decides to Put All Branches Under Sole Control

Committee of the whole of the Edmonton Public School Board Tuesday evening decided on the entire school organization, financial and educational under the control of the superintendent, who is responsible to the board. Trustee S. A. G. Bernie alone opposed the motion. It is felt that centralization of authority was a dangerous thing, under any one man, no matter how competent.

Bylaws regarding the duties of superintendent of schools, assistant superintendent of schools, building commissioner, supply commissioner, school engineers and supervisors of plant, chief medical health officer, attendance officer, supervisors, principals and vice-principals will be presented by the committee in rapid succession.

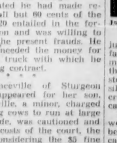

MUSICAL ISSUE

The management committee passed a motion requesting the superintendent to find out whether the services of H. J. Turner could be used, and still obtain the provincial grant. If they could be used Mr. Turner was to be approached to see if he would consider assisting in the musical work of the schools, three half days a week, at the substitute teacher's wage. The whole matter, along with a letter of J. N. Eagleson, supervisor of music, was then to be submitted to the school board for further consideration. No appointment in this regard was made Tuesday night.

TECHNICAL SCHOOL

The management committee also discussed Dr. W. G. Carpenter's report on the technical school and manual training work in the city. On Trustee Casselman's motion the report is to be submitted to the principal and staff of the Technical school for discussion including any complaints or criticisms regarding references in the report to teachers' work. After this has been done a report is to be submitted by the school principal to the superintendent of schools who will bring it up for discussion by the board. This note give the teachers and pupils a square deal and to provide a check on the provincial inspector.

Short Talks With James A. MacKinnon

Jas. A. MacKinnon

I wonder how many of us realize just what tariffs are costing us. A farmer in this Province pays a little more for his binder or automobile than a farmer in Kentucky. Socks, stockings, woolen goods, artificial silk products, linen and cotton goods are all the five years because of tariffs.

Canadian manufacturers were meeting world competition before the tariffs were raised. Why cannot others? We cannot afford inefficient and uneconomical industries in this country. Seventy-five per cent of the people are dependent on primary production and get no benefit from the tariff on manufactures, and there is no doubt the consumer pays under a protectionist policy.

Some tariffs are necessary but necessary in this country but this country was prosperous before tariffs were raised sky high, and will be again when Mr. Mackenzie King leads the government. A vote for me will be a vote for lower tariffs on the articles that are largely into the average home of living.

Watch for another talk Thursday, and be on CJCA at 8.00 o'clock tonight.

All members of the 49th Battalion Association are invited to at the Informal smoker at the Memorial Hall on Wednesday, October 2nd, at 8.30. Admission free.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

— By William Ferguson

IN the crop of one cormorant were found the remains of 70 anchovies, each of which was four or five inches in length. The cormorant population of the one island of Chincha is estimated at 5,800,000 individuals, and this colony is only one of many among the islands of the Humboldt Current.

DECLINE IS WELL ABOVE BILLION MARK

Liquidations, Foreclosures Responsible for New Figures

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—U.S. Agriculture department records Tuesday disclosed a decrease of more than $1,200,000,000 in farm mortgage debt since 1930.

This decrease was attributed by bureau of agricultural economics statisticians to both a liquidation of debts by farmers and to a large degree—to foreclosures by the lending agencies.

In addition, bureau statisticians reported there has been a heavy shift of agricultural loans during the past 12 months from life insurance companies to federal land banks.

The decline in farm mortgage indebtedness began after 1928, and in 1930 the total outstanding was $9,241,290,000. While figures for 1934 were not available, informed officials said the total debt had declined to $8,000,000,000.

Explosive Cap Blows Fingers From Boy's Hand

RIMBEY, Oct. 2.—Vernon Byer 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs Samuel Byer, residing at Iola, 20 miles north-west of Rimbey, lost two fingers on his left hand, and possible eye injury, Sept. 30, while playing with a percussion cap at a neighbors.

Rushed to Rimbey hospital by his teacher, Shirley Shephard, and Frank Pepper, a neighbor, he was attended by Dr. S. Byers.

Lost Calgary Girl Thumbers At Drumheller

DRUMHELLER, Oct. 2.—Missing since Monday morning, two young Calgary girls were located here last night. The girls, Gloria Leach, 11, and Agnes Hardin, 13, left their homes after intimating they wished to hitch-hike to Drumheller. It was believed Miss Leach has relatives here.

Wool Gathering Is Business Aid

FAUST, Oct. 2.— An unique method of improving business was unwittingly developed by the owner of the filling station at Spirit Glen auto and vacation camp, near here, on the Peace River highway.

Because of flood conditions around Lesser Slave lake traffic was not heavy and not many cars stopped, so the station operator, to fill in time, took to spinning wool.

Surprisingly, business improved because, when motorists stopped to see what the heck this fellow was doing, it usually meant another sale of gasoline or oil.

MOVE TO EDMONTON

ST. PAUL, Oct. 2.—Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lessard, who have been residents of St. Paul for the past 25 years, have moved to Edmonton. Mrs. Lessard, who has been an active member of social and church clubs here, was guest of honor at many dinners and teas prior to her departure. The Drama Club presented Mrs. Lessard with a purse as a remembrance from the members.

The Blonde Countess

By H. O. Yardley

READ THIS FIRST

JOEL CARTER, young and pretty, is secretary to NATHANIEL GREENLEAF, chief of the department of chemical supervision, which, in reality, is the "Black Chamber," where enemy codes are unravelled and spies trailed. With MARY BURNS, CAPTAIN COHEN, CAPTAIN MARTIN, her associates, and GREENLEAF, she discusses the German cipher, invisible inks, and especially J-37, mysterious enemy spy, whose identity is unknown.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 5

THEREAFTER Greenleaf was busy with the cipher intercepts which came from the radio room. He read them and then passed them on to Mary Burns for tabulation.

"Miss Carter is secrecy itself."

"We're lucky," he said to Joel. "We're getting all their stuff and the job is getting easier. Pretty soon we'll read their cipher and find out what they know."

"And then?" she asked.

"And then we'll try to find out where they learn it and J-37 will have to marry the president or something to escape us."

His depression had vanished and he even whistled dolefully as he worked. It amused her when he whistled. His clothes were amusing, too. He wore no uniform, but instead, a baggy civilian suit that needed pressing and a necktie that didn't suit him. Were she his wife she'd make certain changes. Someone ought to marry him, but she couldn't see herself in that role. No he'd have to go unmanaged. But he was nice looking at times, with a lean expressive face, and his thin hair was dark and usually rather neat. She took herself in hand and went on with her typing.

It was half past eleven before she knew it. Then a moment after, the military orderly laid a card on her desk and she bore it, bursting with curiosity, to Mr. Greenleaf. Who was this Countess Thorlund? Some relation to the Scandinavian ambassador, his wife, probably. Mr. Greenleaf was evidently pleased, much too pleased, she thought.

The orderly showed the Countess in, also her escort, a handsome French officer in a wonderful uniform that fitted him like a glove. There was an exchange of greetings and the Countess introduced the officer as Captain Duval.

"Andre, this is Mr. Greenleaf of whom you have heard."

"Indeed yes," said Captain Duval in precise English...as who has not? All the capitals of Europe know of Mr. Greenleaf."

"And now, Andre," said the Countess caressingly, "if you will return for me in twenty minutes —if I may have so much time?" she cast a dazzling glance at Greenleaf.

"A half an hour at the least," he said gallantly.

"Let us say twenty-five minutes," said the Countess, "since Mr. Crarenleaf is so good."

The Countess also was aware of the secretary. Her beautiful blue eyes rested appraisingly upon the dark and diligent fingers.

"Can I talk to you confidentially, Mr. Greenleaf?"

"Quite safely," said Greenleaf. "Miss Carter, my secretary, is secrecy and discretion itself. What she should not hear she will not hear." He beamed upon the Countess. "You can go as far as you like."

"Indeed no, I would never do that."

Her hair, thought Joel, casting another quick glance, is genuine blonde. But she does something to it to keep it nice and bright. Scandinavian of course. Blonde hair and blue eyes and a lovely skin, white as parchment. Probably Mr. Greenleaf thinks she's beautiful. She is beautiful. I mustn't be catty. But her eyes are really too close together and he shouldn't be deceived when she lowers the lids and looks at him underneath them in the provocative way. He ought to know that's a trick. I'll tell him, so he can be on his guard. She's out to wheedle him, trying to make him think he's fascinated her. Men are such chumps when a beautiful woman looks at them that way. I could do it myself only I won't. Never. Not a Pim.

Clearly the Countess and Greenleaf had met before and were old and intimate acquaintances. How intimate? Joel asked with a pang. Dangerously intimate if this woman wanted something.

"And this—?" the Countess was saying. Her eye swept over the unusually fine array of clutter of worn furnishings and the apparatus where Captain Martin had been operating. Captain Martin had disappeared somewhere.

"I'm in charge of the Chemical Supervision work," Greenleaf explained. "It's important in munitions."

"It will be hard to make your old enemies believe it is only that," ventured the Countess speculatively.

"You thing it is only camouflage, and poor camouflage at that?" said Greenleaf.

She raised her eyebrows at him. "If I wanted to make them think I really was at the old game when I wasn't I would hardly do better than put on this pretense, could I?"

The Countess eyed him thoughtfully.

"That would be very clever. Yes, yet are capable of that. But why should you wish to? To attract attention from the real secret agents, of course. Would your government be so foolish as to entrust such work to others and put you at this post with your experience, your genius for the other thing?"

He laughed at that.

"I see you don't know my government. It does surprising things. It takes a good farmer and makes him Secretary of War.

"Ah," said the Countess, "the Honorable Noah Hitsins. I have met him. He is not a fool even though he looks—"

"Looks rather rustic," said Greenleaf. "No, he's not a fool but war is not his business. Let him make a speech to a rural audience and he'll surprise you. It is what we call a spell-binder. You know our political slang."

"It is a nice word," said she, "but they would put you, too, to making chemicals and that kind of things?"

"They would and do," said Greenleaf.

She shrugged.

"And I had hoped we could work together again."

He played with the paper knife and asked slowly.

"At the old game? But why should you want to play the old game any more? You have succeeded. You are of the nobility and high in diplomatic circles. The old game had its dangers, too."

"Money?" she said.

"Money? Is that so?"

"It is so. We are not rich. And I have expensive tastes."

He tapped the desk reflectively with the paper knife.

"It might," she agreed with a delicate, ironic twist to her perfect lips.

She's clever, Joel thought, fingers raised over the keyboard. She's damnably and dangerously clever. And she's quite openly avaricious. Maybe he's safe, though, because of that. She'll want to earn her money, so that she can get more. She won't dare to deceive him. She can take him in but not that far. He'd surely see it. And if he does? I'll tell him. He was saying that he would do his best for her, would see the man higher up.

McAFEE—ALLEN

With a charming autumn setting, the wedding of Sheila Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Allen and Millen McAfee, son of Mr. and Mrs John McAfee, was solemnized in Christ church on Saturday evening. Rev. Godfrey Gower, the rector, and Rev. Christopher Story of St. Mark's officiated. Autumn leaves, rowan berries, flowers and fruits formed the background for the ceremony most effectively, for it was an all white wedding. The bride was in white taffeta with bouffant skirt touching the floor, and her veil was tulle with chantilly lace. Her slippers were white satin and she carried lillies of the valley. Miss Vera Wentworth, maid of honor to the bride, was in white satin, and carried violets. Miss Anne Young, bridesmaid, was in white chiffon, and carried pink carnations, and little Sheila Holland, the flower girl, wore white chiffon and carried yellow chrysanthemums. Mr. Philip Allen was best man, and the ushers were Mr. David and Mr. Gordon McAfee, Mr. Thomas Dipple and Mr. Val McAfee. A reception was held in the Corona hotel at which Mrs. Allen was smart in a gown of black lace, with which she wore red roses. Mrs. McAfee wore a gown of violet shade, and her picture hat was chosen to match. Following their honeymoon to Waterton Lakes, the bride and bridegroom will make their home in Red Deer. K951-231

Herman Now Is Known Hermania

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 2—Herman, the big frog the Texas Christian university freshmen selected for a football mascot, apparently figured there was a tough season ahead.

SOCIAL CREDIT CAUCUS SOON

As soon as the by-elections are held with Premier William Aberhart and Hon. C. C. Ross, minister of lands and mines, standing for election to the legislature, a caucus of Social Credit members of the house will be called, the premier stated on Tuesday. This caucus will not be called until the end of November.

The premier said it would be for discussion of government plans and to draft plans for the future.

This announcement is interpreted as being a definite end to any likelihood of an early session.

Lake Claims 40th Victim

HUDSON, Ont., Oct. 2—Pakwash Lake, the lake of death 140 miles from here, claimed its 40th victim during the week-end, it is learned here. William Smith, 19, fell from a scow and was drowned.

Rhode Island bent, creeping bent, and Canadian bluegrass are the best grasses to plant in shady places.

Nagging Wife Ultimate In Home Cruelty

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Oct. 2—There is "probably no greater cruelty which may be inflicted" upon a man "than that which is inflicted by a contentious, unreasonable and nagging woman," the Florida supreme court said Tuesday.

HEPBURN BACKS DAD OF QUINTS

METCALFE, Ont., Oct. 2.—Premier Hepburn, of Ontario, backs Oliva Dionne, father of the famed quintuplets, against Reconstruction leader Stevens as the best booster of Canada's tourist business. He has "done more for the tourist industry than Mr. Stevens has ever done," he told a Carleton County audience here today.

BULGARIA PLOT FORCES SIEGE

BELGRADE, Oct. 2—Discovery of a plot against the Bulgarian government was responsible for the declaration of a state of siege in Bulgaria today, according to reports reaching here.

The proclamation was signed by Premier Andert Toshev after all the plotters had been arrested, it was said.

LABOR URGING USE SANCTIONS

BRIGHTON, Eng., Oct. 2.—The Labor party backed by an overwhelming majority today its executive committee's policy of urging use of military sanctions, if necessary, to restrain Italy's East African campaign.

The vote, taken by a card ballot at the party's annual conference, showed 2,168,000 for sanctions to 102,000 against.

Report Ridiculed

VIENNA, Oct. 2.—The Austrian foreign office today described published reports that Franz Von Papen, German minister to Austria, had offered Austria a non-aggression pact as a "ridiculous invention."

Today's Markets

At Toronto—Mines

TORONTO, Oct. 2—Mining share prices weakened all along the line today, unsettled by Italy's threatening attitude in Africa and Europe. Losses up to 1¾ were boarded in the senior golds and coppers.

At Montreal

MONTREAL, Oct. 2—Listings plunged sharply in heavy selling towards the close of today's trading on the Montreal stock exchange. A large group of stocks showed losses of a point and more.

At New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—A sweeping decline carried quoted values one to more than five points lower among active issues in stock exchange today as war clouds hovered low over Europe. The closing tone was weak. Sales approximated 2,300,000 shares.

At Toronto—Industrials

TORONTO, Oct. 2—War news put a scare into the stock market today and the Toronto industrial list sold off quite sharply. Losses up to about two points were registered in the liquors.

Broomhall

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—A sale of Russian wheat was made to England today at 28s 9d per quarter, which is equal to 88 cents a bushel in American funds, but the better grades are held at 29s 6d, which is equal to 90⅛c c.i.f., to which must be added 6c a bushel import duty into England. There was also a parcel worked from Vancouver and one from Montreal to England, but the continent remained uninterested, and the sum total of export sales from North America to Europe was not important. Two steamers were chartered in London for grain from St. Lawrence ports to England. Bonded wheat stocks in the U.S. increased 800,000 bushels this week and now stand at the large figure of 20,800,000 compraed to 14,200,000 this time last year. Already 5,000,000 bushels have been imported and duty paid on it.

Whole armies of Celts used to march into battle unclad, more than 2,000 years ago.

YOU can bet a good share of your kopecks there will be a real old-fashioned battle of the gridiron before a winner is decided between University of Alberta and Edmonton's new club, the Hi-Grads, in their exhibition Canadian football game at Varsity Stadium next Saturday afternoon. . . . While it was thought for some time that this city would have no local club to represent it—or, at least represent it efficiently—one look over the lineup of the Hi-Grads will convince any follower of the gridiron sport that the team will supply the most capable kind of representation.

• • •

One glance at the roster shows that the club possesses a wealth of backfield material such as no squad here has boasted in many, many years. . . . There is everything that any coach could ask for, and this galaxy of behind-the-line stars includes every luminary that has been produced in high school and junior football here in the last half-dozen years.

• • •

WHILE the Hi-Grads have not had a long list of linemen, the material they do possess for the front wall is of the highest order. . . . They may be short on experienced reserve talent for the line, but they have so many fine halfbacks available for duty up front that there is no need for worry in this regard. . . . It must be a source of gratification for Coaches Ned Wigginton and Caley Mills to have rounded up a crew of this calibre in a city where it was feared that Canadian football was to be one of those forgotten things this fall. . . .

Their work has not been in vain and the results are likely to show when they tangle with Varsity this week-end. . . . The team may not be able to while the students, but they most certainly will put up a real fight against the club Jake Jamieson is rounding into form on the U of A campus.

TIGERS LACK FORWARD PASS THROWING ACE

Johnny Ferrara Missed By Hamilton Grid Squad On Saturday

TORONTO, Oct. 1.— Monday morning quarterbacks here and in Hamilton can explain briskly and without fear of contradiction why Hamilton Tigers may not win the Big Four football championship this year, despite the fact they have one of the country's strongest backfields. The explanation centres around Johnny Ferrara.

Tigers went to war against Argonauts here last Saturday without a forward passer in the lineup. They were beaten 13-8, largely because Argos had two first-class passers, Tony Rosso and Andy Mullan. The question arose immediately why Ferrara was absent.

WAS ONE OF BEST

Johnny joined Tigers a year ago as coach. Straight from Cornell he came, without any idea of Canadian football methods, and led the Bengals to the Big Four championship. His passing was a big factor. He was a rare leader on the field. He ran the ends and bucked the line. Big and strong and durable, Ferrara was one of the year's best all-round players.

But Tigers lost to Sarnia Imperials in the eastern final, Johnny contributing a disastrous offside lateral pass to the result, and it was a fact that he was not generally popular when the season thus ended for Hamilton. So he wasn't re-hired as coach.

Freddy Veale replaces Ferrara now on the bench but nobody so far has shown ability to replace Johnny on the field. Huck Welch has joined up from Montreal to team with Frank Turville and Johnny Craig on the half line. They are all kickers, all good ball-carriers, and not forward passers at all.

NEEDS THROWING MATE

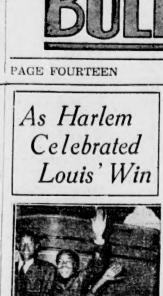

Turville and Welch, long-legged, long-armed, are among the better pass receivers. The Monday morning quarterbacks want to know why Tigers haven't got Ferrara—or somebody—to throw to them. Turville got his hands on one pass Saturday and galloped 20 yards with it for a touchdown.

If that's what the Hamilton aldermen can do, why hasn't he got a throwing mate? The second-guessers would like to have an explanation for that. They fear a potentially great backfield in Hamilton is going to waste under new-style conditions. They would like to see Ferrara back.

In order to quiet this rising roar of protest, Tigers have a simple task, but not an easy one. They will have to defeat Ottawa Rough riders next Saturday in Hamilton. Should Abe Ellowitz smother the Bengals with forward passes, then the Hamilton situation will be admittedly serious. The absent Ferrara may even achieve popularity while living in the United States.

Twenty-six feet a second is the fastest a drop of rain can fall.

As Harlem Celebrated Louis' Win

Joe Louis, the negro youth who came out of Alabama, via Detroit with the appelation "Brown Bomber", is the idol of his race; in what more natural than a celebration of his sensational knockout victory over the great Livermore Lothario, Max Baer. That is just how Harlem celebrated the occasion—and we see here a bus-load of celebrants riding through Harlem, and making the well-known welkin resound to their enthusiasm.

Promoter In Range Of Moxie's Figure

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, and Mike Jacobs, promoter of the Joe Louis-Max Baer fight, were only $50,000 apart today in their effort to come to an agreement which would match the former champion with the Detroit sensation next June.

Schmeling cabled his American manager, Joe Jacobs, that he would come to the United States for a match with Louis for $250,000 with the privilege of 36 per cent. of the gate and $5,000 training expense. Mike Jacobs countered with an offer of $200,000 and $5,000 training expenses, but refused to consent to the 35 per cent.

World Series Sidelights

DETROIT, Oct. 2—There's nothing "slow" about the big Arkansas "trains" who met in the opener of the world series today. Lonnie Warneke and Schoolboy Rowe, both from Arkansas, are two of the best speed-ball pitchers in the game.

The "Schoolboy" can't be taunted into a fit of anger by the razzing Cubs unless they get something new. Last year St. Louis Cardinals drove Rowe to distraction by shouting: "How'm I doing, Edna." Edna then was the "Schoolboy's" sweetheart awaiting the match to the altar. Now, she is Mrs. Rowe. She won't attend the opener. She'll be minding the baby.

Scalpers had a field day in Detroit Tuesday until the buyers struck. When the scalpers demanded as high as $60 a ticket for today's opener, The buyers went on a strike. The public ticket sale here opens at nine a.m. tomorrow. Long lines of fans waited the opener.

Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis took the four series umpires along with him to Navin Field yesterday to study ground rules. It was decided that any ball that caromed off the fence was a ball in play; that a ball that stuck in the screen in short left field was a double, and that any ball that caromed off the sign board in right and into the seats was a double.

The commissioner also asked the umpires to exercise the utmost leniency with players in disputes. He doesn't want a repition of last year's argument which resulted in Joe Medwics being ejected from the final game.

Joe Louis (how the Tigers and Cubs could use his punch) will watch the Detroit games. Dead Pan Joe thought the Tigers would win in the sixth round with a hard left. (He meant the sixth game with a home run in the left field seats).

A poll of baseball writers last night by the Associated Press revealed a thin majority favoring Chicago Cubs to beat Detroit Tigers in the world series. Thirty experts picked the Cubs and 27 named the Tigers as winners.

The consensus was that the series will last six games.

MUTTART PATS CAPTURE CITY SOFTBALL TITLE

Play Smart Ball to Defeat Orange Crush 10-3 in Good Game

Muttart Pats are today city girls' softball champions as a result of their 10-3 conquest over the Orange Crush nine in the third encounter of their two-out-of-three playoff series at Boyle street Tuesday evening. The lumberites won the opening game of the series 9-2 while the second game resulted in a 11-11 deadlock.

Playing as they never have before, the Pats showed a marked superiority over their opponents in all departments of the game last night and were worthy of their triumph. Their showing was surprising to even their most rabid supporter as unlike most of the engagements this season they came through with their hits when they counted most and gave Gladys Wilson, their pitcher, stellar support in the field.

WILSON HAS CLASS

Wilson who in last night's battle made her first appearance against the Crushites turned in a gilt-edged performance in restricting the opposing batters to four scattered hits. Mixing her offerings throughout with plenty of class and using her slow curve to a great advantage she had the opposition eating out of her hand all the way.

To her should be given plenty of credit for the Pats' victory, but Edith Power, Maxine Caldwell, Babe Daniel, Noel MacDonald, Della Griffin and Helen Northup should also be awarded worthy mention for their showing. All six of the last mentioned were particularly impressive both at the plate and in field.

Caldwell, back in uniform after a lengthy absence, returned to her old position at first base. She was a big asset to the team in this department and also contributed a pair of timely hits. Edith Power, with three hits in four attempts, was the leading socketer of the affair. She also made the only four-base blow of the game.

PATS TAKE LEAD

Unlimbering their war-clubs in the third inning to tally three runs, the Pats wrested the lead, and continuing to bunch their hits at the opportune moments during the remaining sessions, added to the margin throughout.

Several fielding gems were turned in by the girls in last night's contest. Delia Griffin, Noel MacDonald and Babe Daniel of the winners making a pair of fine catches each, while Madge Newman, Jerry Marianchuk and Peanuts Martin also registered a smart putout apiece.

Pats were a jubilant aggregation as the game ended, as after two unsuccessful attempts they finally achieved their ambition of winning the city title. In their two previous attempts their victims in last night's clash had defeated them in the final playoff. They had scored revenge that was sweet and satisfying.

METROPOLITAN

Metropolitan Badminton Club will open the fall and winter season on Friday, October 4, in the Queen Alexandra School. Play will commence at 8 p.m.

Former members and new players are asked to register, if possible, on the opening night.

J. BLOCHLINGER PUT ON SPOT

Johnny Blochlinger will again come to the fore when he opposes Don Inkster of Vancouver in a boxing bout to take place, subject to the approval of the Boxing Commission, on Friday, Oct. 11.

This fight is in the welterweight division and promises to be a mighty good match. Blochlinger is in the pink of condition, tipping the scales at 145 pounds. Nevertheless he will have to go all the very best, for he is slated against tough opposition in the person of Don Inkster, who comes to us with an impressive record. It includes a knockout in the fourth round over Hector Macdonald and decisions over Gordon Wallace, Harry Miller, who had previously beaten Wildcat Carter at the coast, and a decision over Al Ford, who in turn had previously kayoed Miller in five rounds.

Semi-finals will see Freddie Gruden back in the ring making against either Jimmie Wilde of Edson, a very promising middleweight, or Kid Aleide.

Preliminaries will be extra special.

Lenhart Defeats Gibbons in Bout

SEATTLE, Oct. 2—Fred Lenhart, 171½, Tacoma, broke the long winning streak of smooth-working Jack Gibbons, 162½, St. Paul, in the main event of a boxing card here last night by pounding out a decision in 10 rounds.

Outweighed nine pounds, Gibbons gave a fine performance for seven rounds, taking four of them. But in the last three, Lenhart drove hard blows to Gibbons' mid-riff and slowed down the son of the famous Mike Gibbons.

Fred Miller Now Menace To Opponent

Freddy Miller, featherweight ruler from Cincinnati, is to defend his crown against Jimmy Christy, above, young Chicago Irish battler who has leaped into prominence in six months. The fight is to take place in the Chicago Stadium, Oct. 18.

JUNIOR NINES TO PLAY GAME HERE SUNDAY

Redwater Team Invades Edmonton Sandlots At 3:00 o'Clock

Redwater has produced a winning team in their league, which comprised more than three teams, and the Redwater squad won the championship, so they may be giving stiff opposition to the local squad.

Just what players will be picked for the local squad has not been announced by the league executives, who are rapidly completing plans for the game.

There are, however, several minor details to clear up before the exhibition game is definitely on but there is every possibility that the game will be played as scheduled.

RACEGOERS MISS PLUNGER BOOKIE

LONDON, Oct. 2—Joe Barnett, the bookmaker, known for many years as "the best-dressed man in Tattersalls," is dead. He made spectacular wagers.

On one occasion he paid out $125,000 in one bet and on another he laid $500 to a Yorkshire backer who had fancied an outsider with only passing prospects of success. He offered the backer odds of $500 to a carrot. The horse lost, and Barnett duly received the carrot.

Rookie Chicago Southpaw Injured

Terriers Win 23-8 Over Elmwood Pats Semi-Final Clash

WINNIPEG, Oct. 2. — Orillia's champion Terriers advanced to the 1936 Canadian lacrosse finals against the Pacific coast's Richmond farmers with a sweeping 23-8 victory over the Elmwood Patricians here last night.

The 1934 Dominion titlists had things their own way for most of the bruising sudden-death semi-final. They boxed in the Pats in their territory for most of the game, seldom giving them a chance to breakaway.

The experienced Mann cup holders overwhelmed the young and ambitious Pats from the start. Only in the last quarter did the Pats put up a stern battle. The Terriers scored 15 goals in the first three periods, against Elmwood's five. In the final stanza, the Pats held down the easterners' scoring to eight counters, while they ran in another three tallies themselves to make the final score read: Orillia 23; Elmwood 8.

WAS STAR PLAYER

Lanky "Tear" Munro, though not high-scoring man, was the standout for Orillia. From his defence position he started play after play and repeatedly stopped the Pats' rushes single-handed.

Seldom did the Dominion champions miss any passes and their shooting was deadly. The Pats, on the other hand, were loose in their passing and failed to capitalize on several chances. Tommy Cooper was easily Elmwood's best player.

DECRIPTIVE PLAY
FIRST PERIOD

Orillia opened the scoring within three minutes of the start. Bill Wilkes scored from right wing on a pass from Gordon Boettger. Three minutes later Hank Munro scored with a bullet shot from outside the Pats' defence, beating Wares easily.

Bill Wilson scored Orillia's third counter, picking the ball out of the air down near his own goal and racing the length of the rink. He gave Wares no chance to save.

A minute later Bill Curran took Fred Hatton's pass to score again for the Terriers. Munro got the ball after a face-off near the Pats' goal and whipped it past Wares on the first period ended.

SECOND PERIOD

The fans were barely seated when Pats got their first score. Tommy Cooper slipped the ball in over the heads of a milling bunch of Terriers. Orillia wasn't long in replying. At the 40-second mark Butch Boettger scored on a pass from Tom Scott, and added another a minute later, while Len Wilkes was serving the game's first penalty.

Pats kept the ball down in Terriers' ground but couldn't score. McLean Rifled home Orillia's next score with a shot from centre. Then Pats came all up. Swede

MIKE JACOBS TO TAKE OVER GARDEN BOUTS

His Control Of Boxing In Madison Square Gardens Certain

By EDWARD J. NEIL

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—Mike Jacobs first of the $1,000,000 gate fight promoters since the days of Tex Rickard, is about to take over the prizering privileges of New York's Madison Square Garden, the house that Rickard built when Jacobs was his silent partner. His control will cover the next five years and include the Garden's outdoor bowl.

From an unimpeachable source the Associated Press learned last night that one of the outcomes of the recent proxy battle for control of the Garden between Col. John R. Kilpatrick, president of the $3,000,000 corporation, and Col. John S. Hammond, also a former associate of Rickard, was a request to Jacobs that he step in and take over boxing in the Garden.

The decision is due today, following Col. Kilpatrick's victory in the proxy fight.

TO BE INFORMED

Jacobs, now in Detroit to discuss with automobile interests the possibility of staging a match here between Joe Louis and Max Schmeling next June, expects to be informed by wire whether his bid has been accepted. Meanwhile Mike refused to comment.

It is considered almost a certainty that one of Jacobs' two propositions to the Garden will be accepted. The request for these offers was made by the Garden to Jacobs.

Jacobs promoted matches this summer between Barney Ross and Jimmy McLarnin, Joe Louis and Primo Carnera, and his final triumph, little more than a week ago, when Louis knocked out Max Baer in four rounds in the Yankee Stadium in a match that grossed better than $1,000,000.

The Associated Press learned that Jacobs has offered the Garden two propositions, one a flat rental for the 14 Friday nights open to boxing and the other a percentage of the gate, a guarantee for a season, plus a liberal percentage of the profits above a certain figure.

Profits from outdoor shows in the big bowl on Long Island also would be shared by Jacobs and the Garden.

Warship Movements

LONDON, Oct. 2—The admiralty list of warship movements issued last night showed that the battleship Queen Elizabeth left Devonport for Gibraltar on Sept. 28. The cruiser Ajax arrived at Haifa, Palestine, Sept. 27 and the cruiser Exter at Malta the same day.

WORLD SERIES PROVE POPULAR

CHICAGO, Oct. 2—Every one of the 37,000 reserved seats for the three Chicago games of the world series was sold Tuesday three hours and 53 minutes after the ticket windows opened.

The sad word was shouted to 20,000 disappointed fans by ushers with megaphones, thus ending the brief history of the first—and first-come-first-served sales of world series tickets in baseball annals.

Box seats for the three games cost $19.80 and grand stand seats came to $16.50 for three. It was estimated the cash poured in through the wickets totalled approximately $600,000.

Underworld Series Challenge Is Filed By Oklahoma 'Cons'

McALESTER, Okla., Oct. 2.— The Oklahoma penitentiary Outlaws—featuring a second baseman who has stolen 23 bases this season—challenged the Texas penitentiary nine last night in an "underworld series" for the southwest prison baseball championship.

Marion Daniels, the second baseman who has stolen all those bases this season, has hit .416 in 32 games.

MILLION DOLLAR WORLD SERIES IS PREDICTED

Full Seven Games Sure To Produce Financial Record

Chicago Cubs Will Start Warneke While Detroit Tigers Name Lyn Rowe For Mound Battle.

By ALAN GOULD

DETROIT, Oct. 2—The world series, shaking off the chilling effects of an unwelcome blast of football weather, opens today in full panoply. It brings together Detroit Tigers, two-time American league champions, and Chicago Cubs, stretch-sensations of the National league pennant race, in an uproar of old-time rivalry.

Navin field will likely be packed to its capacity of 48,700, a new high for the park, when the two lanky sharpshooters from Arkansas, Lynwood ("Schoolboy") Rowe, of the Tigers and Lonnie Warneke, of the Cubs, unwrap their good right arms for a pitching duel.

CERTAIN SELL-OUT

It will be a $1,000,000 series if only five games are played, taking into account the fact $100,000 for broadcasting rights will be added to the gate receipts.

A six or seven game battle, which isn't at all unlikely, will mean an all-time financial record. The previous high mark of $1,207,-000 was set by the Yankees and Cardinals in 1926 in seven games.

The Cubs ruled favorites in the betting last night to take the opening game, not only because they are rated the "hotter club" but because of the acknowledged prowess of Warneke. The Tigers have been slight favorites to capture the series, among wagering men, but a rush of Chicago money indicated a possible switch.

PREFER CHICAGO

A majority of baseball writers, after watching the two clubs go through their final practice paces between showers Tuesday, indicated a preference for Chicago's chances. But it's a tough series to "dope."

Chicago's hopes are hinged largely upon the long right arm of Warneke, just as the Tigers place supreme confidence in the sharp-shooting ability of Rowe. Warneke enters the championship test with a record unmatched by any other pitcher in baseball over the last month.

Lonnie has captured his last pressure and against the best the pressure an dagainst the best the opposition could offer. Rowe's control has been erratic and the schoolboy doesn't do his best in cool weather.

ROOT FOR SECOND

Warneke will be shot right back into action for the fourth game and he will be pitted again for the seventh game, in Detroit, if the series goes the limit.

Grimm's pitching program does not include a starting assignment for Larry French, his southpaw star. French will be kept primed for relief work, if and when necessary, the manager declared.

Cochrane's pitching strategy took similar shape as Mickey indicated he would depend upon Rowe, Bridges and Auker, his crack right-handers, for starting duty. The veteran right-hander, Al Crowder, will be in reserve, along with the southpaw relief pitcher, "Chief" Elon Hogsett.

Chicago Cubs Youngest Pennant Winning Club But Prove "Hottest" For Bettors.

By PAUL MICKELSON

CHICAGO, Oct. 2—Chicago Cubs, one of the youngest pennant winning teams in baseball history, with an age average of but 26 years, haven't a pitcher who ever won a world series game, but they figure to hold an edge over Mickey Cochrane's moundsmen.

Up until Sept. 4, before the Cubs' hurlers touched off the great winning streak that won the flag, the Tiger pitchers, who then had raced up on their superb rush, stacked up as the better mound staff. But the comparative finishes have been great contrasts.

PITCHERS FEATURE

The work of Charlie Grimm's pitchers in the 21-game winning streak has been so sensational that starting hurlers were able to go the full route in 18 out of 21 engagements. Over the spectacular streak only 24 pitchers were employed, holding the opposition to 48 runs, an average of 2.28 runs a contest.

With a staff as "hot" as that, you can't deny the Cubs' "Big Four," Lon Warneke, Charlie Root, Bill Lee and Larry French a margin over the Tiger "Big Four," Schoolboy Rowe, Elden Auker, Tom Bridges and Alvin Crowder.

COMPARING THE 'STARS

Warneke and Auker: Warneke, a cool workman with a lightning fast ball, is the chief reliance of the Cub staff and a hard man to beat. Auker delivers a tricky underhand ball. There isn't a pitcher like him in the National League. Both had earned run averages of 3.31 in the season just closed.

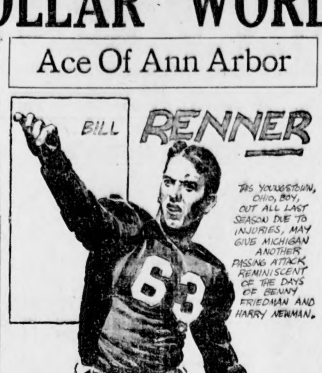

Root and Bridges: Tommy may be Cochrane's best bet. When he's right with his great curve, he's invincible. Root may be soup for Hank Greenberg's home run ball, but he's a smart, fast ball pitcher. Root's earned run average for the season is 3.76 to Bridges' 4.08.

Lee and Rowe: Rowe, flashing his 1934 form again, has the edge if he stays "hot." He has everything when right. Lee throws a low, fast ball and is one of the fastest improving pitchers in baseball, a six foot three giant with a world of speed, the percentage pitching champion of the National League with 20 victories, six defeats and an earned run average of 3.09 compared to 19, 13, and 3.85 for Rowe.

Enthusiasm Starts Among Marathoners In Bulletin Race

Entries Are Received from Tommy Aird and Jerome Platt for Marathon On Thanksgiving Day

Marathon race fans of Edmonton, as you are no doubt aware of by this time, will in the near future again be treated to a delightful event when athletes from here and afar will compete for the Bulletin trophy on Thanksgiving day, October 24.

This race has always proven itself one of the outstanding sports events of the year and one which has in years past deeply interested the Edmonton public. This year's race by all reports and indications promises to be the most successful ever held.

The Bulletin is proud to acknowledge itself the sponsor of such a worthy sport. Marathon racing has successfully undergone the test of time. Many years ago the old Sparts and Greeks practiced it intensively as a worthy means of developing the brawn and muscles of their young warriors and today athletes the world over acknowledge it as one of the best trainings for all lines of sport.

The Bulletin is anxious to see a long list of entries and sends out a hearty invitation to all athletes of Alberta and other western provinces. The trophy is well worth their efforts and whoever captures it can point to it with pride.

If this year, as in the two previous years, Jack Wahlberg steps over the line in first place, he will be awarded the trophy permanently. Nevertheless to emerge victorious he will have some strong opposition to overcome, including such stalwarts at the game as Tommy Aird, of Edmonton, and Jerome Platt, of Taber, who's entries have already been received.

Thanksgiving day is drawing near and marathon runners who intend to compete would be well advised to fill in their entries as soon as possible. Either fill in the entry form published regularly in the Bulletin or send a letter, addressing same to the Sports Editor, the Edmonton Bulletin.

Ship Loading Ban Is Now Lifted

VANCOUVER, Oct. 2.—The ban against unloading of the S.S. Point Clear, tied up in San Francisco when longshoremen there refused to handle the cargo because it had been loaded here under strike conditions, was lifted last night, officials of the striking Vancouver Longshore association announced.

COL. HAMMOND OUSTED FROM SPORTS ARENA

Fight For Control Of Madison Garden Is Now Ended

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—The struggle of the "embattled Colonels" for control of New York's great sport arena, Madison Square Garden, apparently reached its final round on Tuesday as Colonel John S. Hammond lost his position as chairman of the board of directors.

He was replaced by Stanton Griffis, a partner in the brokerage firm of Hemphill, Noyes & Co., as the Garden's new board of directors, chosen last Friday after a prolonged proxy battle between Hammond and Colonel John R. Kilpatrick, president, met for the first time.

Kilpatrick was again named president of the corporation and of its subsidiary, New York Rangers' Professional Hockey Club, as had been anticipated. The latter position was formerly held by Hammond.

It was said by officials following the meeting that no change in policies was contemplated and that important personnel of the organization would be unchanged "for the time being."

James Johnston, Garden matchmaker, will continue his duties, and Lester Patrick, manager of the hockey team, who was re-named vice-president at the meeting, will remain in the managerial post on

Bill Wilson added another for Orillia on Boettger's pass and Cooper replied in a hurry for the Pats. Lee Swaffer drew an assist on Cooper's goal and then followed it up with another pass to Mattson, who converted.

The teams were short handed when Bill Wilson added another goal for the easterners to leave the score 10-4 for Orillia as the period ended.

THIRD PERIOD

The Terriers started Bruno Cavello in the nets for the third period. Orillia quickly increased the scoring, making up Elmwood's fifth goal with a shot from 10 feet out after splitting the defence.

Orillia scored through Ernie Curran, who converted a pass from Munro. Terriers had a hurry' from their own way. Boettger and Bill Wilson quickly added two counters for the Dominion champs.

Bill Wilson and Downie each slapped in one, almost on top of each other and the period ended: Orillia 15; Elmwood 5.

FOURTH PERIOD

Elmwood tried a change of goal tenders, putting Grant in the net. Swaffer scored for Pats after 40 seconds of play, and less than a minute later McGuth counted again for Elmwood.

Orillia scored a minute later, Wilson taking Ed. Downey's pass to beat Grant. Kelly was serving a penalty at the time. Wilson scored again when the team was at full strength. Downey again gave him the pass.

Lorne Munro got the ball from a face-off near midrink and ripped one in that Grant couldn't even see. Curran scored from just as far out with the same kind of shot two minutes later. Bill and Ernie Curran combined for Terriers' next score. Bill doing the counting.

THE WORLD Sings the Praises of ROBBIE BURNS

"He (Burns) never touched a sentiment without carrying it to its ultimate expression, and leaving nothing further to be said."

Abraham Lincoln
President of United States 1861-1865

Lord Arthur Balfour
British Statesman

BURNS MEMORIAL Quebec, Mass.

Named for Scotland's great bard, Robbie Burns famed old Whiskey has earned its world-wide popularity as a result of long years of rigid adherence to its ancient formula which combines in a smooth, mellow beverage the finest characteristics of carefully selected Scotch Malt Whiskies.
